THROUGH THE VEIL

A Testimony of the Great Substitution

The Complete Expanded Edition

"This is not doctrine. This is not theory. This is testimony."

A Testimony of the Great Substitution

The Complete Expanded Edition

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Part One: The Personal Testimony

* Chapter 1: The Marked Outsider - A Life in Detail
* Chapter 2: The Awakening After Sobriety
* Chapter 3: The Demon in the Bottle

Part Two: The Hidden Anatomy

* Chapter 4: The Eye Versus the I - The Pineal as Original Sight
* Chapter 5: The Mirror Trap - How Self-Reflection Became Self-Obsession

Part Three: The Hidden History

* Chapter 6: Dragons Versus Dinosaurs - The Truth They Buried
* Chapter 7: St. Christopher and the Dog-Headed Beings
* Chapter 8: UFOs, Wormholes, and the Alien Deception
* Chapter 9: The Hollow Souls - NPCs and Spiritual Vacancy

Part Four: The Hidden Systems

* Chapter 10: Modern Medicine - The Band-Aid Economy
* Chapter 11: Economics - The Worker Bees and the Illusion of Equality
* Chapter 12: The King James Corruption

Part Five: The Hidden Resets

* Chapter 13: Tartaria and the Mud Flood
* Chapter 14: The Cabbage Patch Kids and the Orphan Trains
* Chapter 15: The Petrified Giants - Devils Tower and the Axe
* Chapter 16: The 200 Craters and the 200 Fallen

Part Six: The Hidden Rulers

* Chapter 17: Bloodlines and the Thrones of Earth
* Chapter 18: The Council of the Cast-Out

Part Seven: The Hidden Language

* Chapter 19: Spelling as Spellcasting
* Chapter 20: Paleo-Hebrew - The Divine Language Versus the Frankenstein Tongue

Part Eight: The Hidden Substitution

* Chapter 21: The Dual Crucifixion - The Spectacle and the Shadow
* Chapter 22: The Name That Was Replaced

Part Nine: The Hidden Timeline

* Chapter 23: The Short Season - We Are Living in It
* Chapter 24: The Missing Trees

Part Ten: The Signal and the Restoration

* Chapter 25: The Substances That Steal the Signal
* Chapter 26: The Frequency War
* Chapter 27: The Message to the Reader

Supplementary Chapters and Deep Explorations

* Chapters 28-58: Extended testimonies, detailed inversions, practical applications

Appendix and Reference Materials

AUTHOR'S NOTE

By the time you reach this page, you've walked through the same patterns that once confronted me - the fracture beneath the familiar, the inversion hiding in plain sight, the quiet truths the world works so hard to bury. You've seen the architecture behind the spectacle, and you've felt the weight of what it means to finally look without turning away.

The journey you read in the Introduction - the hunger, the wandering, the slow cracking open - was only the beginning. What followed was a long season of unlearning, of seeing the world with new eyes, of realizing how much I had missed while drifting through life half-awake. And through every step of that process, Yahuah was patient. Yahusha was persistent. Grace kept reaching further than my understanding could.

This book exists because I needed to preserve what was revealed to me - not to elevate myself, but to honor the One who opened my eyes. Every insight, every pattern, every moment of clarity is a reflection of His generosity, not my ability.

I do not ask you to believe everything within these pages. I ask only that you test it. Hold it up to the light. Compare it to the Word. And if something stirs within you - if a fragment of memory begins to surface - then perhaps you, too, are ready to see.

This is not doctrine. This is not theory. This is testimony. And it begins with a single, uncomfortable truth: we have all been deceived. Not by accident. Not by evolution. But by design.

The veil is thin now. Thinner than it has ever been. And what you do with what you see... that is between you and the Most High.

PART ONE: THE PERSONAL TESTIMONY

CHAPTER 1: THE MARKED OUTSIDER - A LIFE IN DETAIL

Thirty Years in the Fog

I've always been different. Disconnected from cultural norms. Repelled by what others gravitate toward. Not by choice - by instinct.

My life has been chaos. But through this whole thing, up to this point, I have seen a very real pattern that made me question the whole way through - why am I still here? What is my purpose? Everybody has a purpose, I get it. But what is mine? Because I don't get the same treatment as everybody else.

For thirty years, I drank. Not casually. Not socially. I drank like a man running from something he couldn't name. I drank like someone trying to drown out a frequency that wouldn't stop humming in the back of my skull. And for most of that time, I didn't even know what I was running from.

I was a baseball player. Not really good at first, but I made myself good. I worked at it. I earned my spot. Then I went to college on a scholarship and started drinking and ruined it. That was it. Just like that. One decision, or maybe a thousand small ones, and everything I'd built collapsed.

My idea of life at that point was just drink, drink, drink. Girls came to me because they thought I was good looking, and I destroyed them along the way. I had kids, nothing planned. Just chaos. Always chaos.

But through all of it, I kept asking - why am I still here?

I've always considered my lack of self-confidence to be a negative trait of mine. I've never really had any self-confidence at all. Even though people look at me and say I'm a pretty good representation of a guy in good shape. But I feel lesser than everybody, for the most part. That's the irony nobody sees.

What I do know is this: if you ask 90% of the people who know me, they'd say I'm the funniest, happiest, go-lucky, friendliest, most helpful guy ever. And I've always been that way - until I started hating everything because of my upbringing, my failures, my destroyed potential.

The Eyes That See Through

Everybody looks at me as though I have the answers. I don't know why. Maybe it's my eyes.

People describe them as intense, green, glowing - soul-piercing, even intimidating. These aren't casual observations. These are the words people use when they try to describe what it's like to be looked at by me. And I never understood it until I started paying attention to the pattern.

These eyes are shared across my bloodline: me, my daughter, my sister, my father - all with the same eyes. My mother with piercing blue. It's not just a color. It's not just genetics in the traditional sense. It's something more. Something that marks us.

When people look into my eyes, they see something that makes them uncomfortable. Not because I'm threatening. Not because I'm angry. But because they feel seen. And most people don't want to be seen. They want to be left alone in their illusions.

The Birthmark Between the Shoulder Blades

And there's a birthmark. Identical in shape, color, and placement - between the shoulder blades, near the spine. Shared by multiple family members. I don't know what it means. I just know it's there.

Some would call it coincidence. Some would call it genetic quirk. But when you see the same mark, in the same place, across a bloodline - you start to wonder if it's something else entirely. A sign. A seal. A reminder of something we've forgotten.

The spine is the column that connects the brain to the body. The shoulder blades are where wings would be - if we had them. I don't claim to know what it means. I only know it's real. And it connects us in ways I can't fully explain.

The Body That Doesn't Break

I've never broken a bone. Never needed a doctor or dentist in 35 years. My teeth are still white. I'm almost 50 and people think I'm 30. I've got all my hair, it's still brown. No wrinkles, still in shape.

This isn't bragging. It's just weird.

So many coincidences. Maybe everybody has them too, but they don't pay attention. I don't know. But when you stack them all together - the eyes, the birthmark, the unbroken bones, the ageless appearance - it starts to look less like luck and more like design.

I've been through things that should have killed me. Drinking for thirty years. Car accidents. Fights. Falls. Situations where any normal person would have been hospitalized or buried. And I walked away. Every time.

Why?

The Feeling of Being an Avatar

I've even gotten to the point where I feel sometimes like maybe the reality around me isn't actually there. Like maybe I'm an avatar in spirit, in body. Because I believe our bodies are a biological suit for our spirit that was breathed into us by the Father. We're obviously here to learn and accomplish something.

This isn't dissociation. This isn't mental illness. This is discernment. The growing awareness that what we call "reality" is only one layer of existence. That there's something beneath it. Something above it. Something we've been trained to ignore.

And I'm certain I'm not alone in feeling this way. But I've yet in 50 years to meet anyone else who does. Not truly. Not in a way that goes beyond surface agreement. Most people nod and move on. They don't want to sit with the discomfort of what it means.

I've only connected deeply with maybe 2-3 people in my entire life. Real, soul-level connection. The kind where you can speak freely without filtering. The kind where you know you're understood. And even then, there are layers I've never been able to share - until now.

CHAPTER 2: THE AWAKENING AFTER SOBRIETY

The Decision That Changed Everything

There came a day when I looked in the mirror - not at my face, but at my life - and I knew. I've got to stop at all costs because it's going to destroy me.

That wasn't an exaggeration. It wasn't drama. It was truth. The alcohol was killing me. Not just my body. My spirit. My potential. My connection to everything real.

And so I stopped.

It wasn't easy. If you've never struggled with addiction, you don't know. If you have, you understand that the decision to quit is only the beginning. The war comes after. The war against habit. Against chemistry. Against the spiritual forces that have a vested interest in keeping you numb.

The Six-Month Threshold

When I quit drinking, after about 6 months, it became incredibly clear how incredibly limited I had been because of it. My brain started clicking. Things started coming to light and becoming clear. Things I had kind of touched on during my alcoholism, but never fully grasped.

It was like waking up from a dream that had lasted three decades. Like having cataracts removed that I didn't even know I had. The world looked the same, but I was seeing it differently. I was seeing the patterns. The connections. The deceptions.

And with that clarity came downloads. Not audible voices. Not visions in the traditional sense. But information. Insights. Realizations that arrived fully formed, as if they had been waiting for me to be sober enough to receive them.

The Paradox of Improvement

But things went better except for my personal relationships. As an alcoholic I was functioning. I kept jobs, I made money. I paid my bills. And then as soon as I quit, all that changed. I lost jobs. I stopped having money.

My relationships seemed to get better, but I didn't know how to react because I was so used to drowning myself out by early evening. The rest of the night I would just be completely gone. An asshole to everybody. Or maybe not - I'd be by myself and just sit and sometimes I would just cry for hours and hours and hours. And I never understood any of it.

Until the clarity came.

I realized that the drinking had been doing more than numbing me. It had been protecting the system. Keeping me compliant. Keeping me distracted. When I stopped, the system pushed back. The spiritual resistance became tangible. Every step forward was met with two steps of opposition.

My mother, when I told her about what was happening, said: "Jason, it's the devil trying to get you." And maybe that's just her way of saying keep doing the right thing. But I swear to you, it feels like something is trying to prevent me from moving forward.

The Flood of Revelation

Once the channel was clear, the signal came through like a flood.

The dots I had been unable to connect suddenly formed constellations. The questions I had asked my whole life started receiving answers. Not from books. Not from teachers. Not from any external source I could point to. From somewhere deeper. From the place where spirit meets mind. From the antenna that had been jammed for thirty years.

I started seeing the deception everywhere. In language. In history. In religion. In science. In entertainment. In the very structure of the world we've been taught to accept as normal.

And I couldn't unsee it.

That's the thing about waking up - there's no going back to sleep. Once you've seen the machinery behind the curtain, the magic trick stops working. The illusion loses its power. And you're left with a choice: speak or stay silent.

I chose to speak. This book is that speech.

CHAPTER 3: THE DEMON IN THE BOTTLE

Possession vs. Addiction

I've seen evil people before and it's almost like I was possessed by something, I swear, because I'm not a bad person. But there was this spell in my life - a very long spell, actually, 30 years close to it - where I was.

And I will say: I drank a lot of alcohol. And I know alcohol has a way of changing people. But I think that change in people is not just a change in your physical form or your physical response.

I know people who drink a lot and they are just the happiest people. I drank, and I turned into a demon. Something that I couldn't even remember what I was the night before. Most of the time, just a faint feeling of dread. And it's not that I even drank enough to be blackout drunk. But it just became... I was someone else.

The Etymology of Spirits

The word "alcohol" traces back to Arabic - "al-kuhl" - meaning "the kohl" or "the body-eating spirit." In occult traditions, alcohol was known to summon or invite spirits. That's why we call drinks "spirits."

Think about that. We don't call them beverages. We don't call them drinks. We call them spirits. And we invite them in. We open ourselves to them. We make ourselves vulnerable to whatever wants to come through.

For thirty years, I drank spirits. And something other than me took up residence. Not permanently. Not completely. But enough. Enough to hijack my nights. Enough to destroy my relationships. Enough to keep me from becoming who I was meant to be.

Warfare Readiness

Why sobriety is not moralism - it's warfare readiness.

You're not just cleaning your body when you quit drinking. You're restoring your receiver. You're unclogging the antenna. You're preparing yourself to perceive clearly in a world designed to keep you blind.

When I stopped drinking, the downloads started. The clarity came. The pieces began to connect. Not because I became smarter. Because I could finally hear.

You cannot fight the adversary if you're sedated. You cannot hear the signal if you've invited the noise to live inside you.

This is not a temperance lecture. This is warfare preparation. The enemy knows exactly what substances lower your defenses. He knows exactly what opens the doors. And he's been exploiting that knowledge for millennia.

The Thankful Decision

Then I made a decision. A thankful decision to quit drinking and open my mind up. And of course, to stop drinking fluoridated water. I'm the only person that I know that does, except for my kids. And they are open-minded as they can be.

I think that's the link. Everybody knows it. They talk about it all the time. But there's no real connect-the-dots kind of thing to the whole big picture.

The alcohol was one layer. The fluoride was another. The processed food. The electromagnetic frequencies. The constant bombardment of images and sounds designed to fragment attention. All of it working together. All of it targeting the same thing: our ability to perceive truth.

When you start removing those layers, one by one, something remarkable happens. The noise quiets. The static clears. And suddenly, you can hear the signal that was always there, waiting to be received.

PART TWO: THE HIDDEN ANATOMY

CHAPTER 4: THE EYE VERSUS THE I - THE PINEAL AS ORIGINAL SIGHT

The Eye Before Mirrors

Think about this. Imagine being in David and Goliath's Jerusalem. You don't have mirrors. You might see a reflection in the water. Eyes have always been - at least the connotation is - something you used to see. And of course, they understood they could see what's in front of them with these two things on the front of their head.

But seeing then and seeing now - obviously, especially in the original language - could have been completely different.

They didn't see themselves all the time. They weren't looking at themselves in a mirror all the time. They weren't trying to figure out how pretty they were all the time. They just knew that these things on the front of their face allowed them to move around.

They knew then that it was connected to the brain. That your brain actually sees. Your eyes are the conductors.

The Original "I"

What we call the eyes - and the "I" - is the pineal gland. It has to be.

And I'm telling you, it might be what it is with me. Because most people I know either try to understand or they just don't try. But the ones that try get overwhelmed. What if their pineal glands are calcified? And it's because they drink fluoridated water. And I've told them year after year after year - stop drinking it. And of course, they're fighting to get it out of the water supply now, but still not working. It's still in the water supply.

Connect the dots.

The Singular Eye in Scripture

In Matthew 6:22, Yahusha said: "The light of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light."

One eye. Singular. Not the two you see with - the one you perceive with.

The pineal gland sits at the center of your brain, between the two hemispheres. It is shaped like a pinecone - hence the name. It produces melatonin, regulates sleep, and responds to light even though it sits in total darkness inside your skull.

But that's not why it matters.

The pineal gland is light-sensitive. It regulates circadian rhythms, melatonin, and possibly more. Ancient cultures revered it as the "seat of the soul" (Descartes), the "third eye" (Vedic), the "Eye of Horus" (Egyptian).

In Hebrew, the word for "eye" (ayin) also means fountain or spring - a source. That's not coincidence.

Genesis 32:30 - Peniel

"So Jacob called the name of the place Peniel, saying, 'For I have seen God face to face, and yet my life is preserved.'"

Peniel. Face of El. The Mighty One.

Jacob named the place after his encounter with the divine. And the name he chose - Peniel - contains the same root as pineal. This is not linguistic coincidence. This is encoded truth.

The place where Jacob saw the face of Yahuah is named for the organ that allows spiritual sight. The very organ that modern civilization has systematically attacked through water fluoridation, processed foods, and electromagnetic interference.

The War on the Receiver

What has modern civilization done to this sacred gland?

Flooded your water with fluoride - a known calcifier of the pineal. Filled your food with processed chemicals that block the signal. Surrounded you with screens that disrupt your circadian rhythm and dull your perception. Encouraged substances that sedate the spirit and open doors to entities that should remain closed.

This is not an accident. It is a war on your ability to perceive.

Without a functioning pineal, you're not just blind. You're programmable. You don't need wires or metal limbs to be a robot. You just need to be disconnected from discernment. And that's exactly what they've done.

They told you it was useless. They flooded your water with fluoride. They filled your food with chemicals. They drowned your mind in noise. And they gave you a thousand images of "robots" so you'd never realize you already are one.

Not because you're evil. But because you've been cut off from the signal.

CHAPTER 5: THE MIRROR TRAP - HOW SELF-REFLECTION BECAME SELF-OBSESSION

The Hijacking of the True Eye

When I talked to my friend earlier, I said: We see 0.003% of the light spectrum. You can't see 99.997% of what's around you. And maybe it's nothing. But how were you to know?

People believe in ghosts. Their loving loved-one spirits. But the Bible, in fact, says you sleep until your resurrection. So anything you encounter in this life will either be an angel or a demon.

The visible eyes were tools for movement. But the true eye - the I - was the pineal gland. The inner compass. The spiritual lens.

But something happened. Mirrors became common. Vanity became virtue. And the eye that was meant to look inward began to look outward - at the surface, at the reflection, at the image.

The Modern Mirror Obsession

In ancient times - David's Jerusalem, pre-glass, pre-vanity - people didn't see themselves daily. "Seeing" wasn't about self-image. It was about navigation, discernment, and awareness of the world and the divine.

The two visible eyes were tools for movement. But the true eye, the I, was the pineal gland - the inner compass, the spiritual lens.

Your brain actually sees. Your eyes are the conductors. But the pineal? That's the receiver - the antenna for higher signal.

Today, we are surrounded by reflective surfaces. Phones. Tablets. Mirrors in every room. Store windows. Car windows. We see ourselves constantly. And in that constant seeing, we lose the ability to see beyond ourselves.

The mirror trap isn't just about vanity, though vanity is part of it. It's about attention. About where we direct our consciousness. Every moment spent examining our external image is a moment not spent perceiving spiritual reality.

The Gospel of Self

"Love yourself first." "You are enough." "Manifest your truth." "Be your own god."

These are the mantras of the modern age. They are whispered in self-help books, shouted from stages, and embedded in the algorithms that feed your mind. They sound empowering. They feel liberating. But they are the inversion of everything the Creator taught.

The gospel of self says: "You are the center of the universe. Your feelings are truth. Your desires are sacred. Your identity is whatever you declare it to be."

The gospel of the Messiah says: "Deny yourself. Take up your cross. Follow Me."

These two gospels cannot coexist. One leads to the throne of the self. The other leads to the throne of the Most High.

The adversary doesn't need you to worship Lucifer by name. He just needs you to worship yourself. Because when you are your own god, you need no Creator. You need no Messiah. You need no repentance. You are sufficient unto yourself.

This is the oldest lie. It was whispered in the Garden: "You will be like Elohim."

And it is still being whispered today - in prettier packaging, with better marketing, and a billion-dollar industry behind it.

PART THREE: THE HIDDEN HISTORY

CHAPTER 6: DRAGONS VERSUS DINOSAURS - THE TRUTH THEY BURIED

The Dictionary Evidence

I don't believe there were dinosaurs. I believe there were dragons.

The evidence for that is clear. It was in the dictionary up until around 1950, where it said dragons nowadays are rare. And if you ask certain AIs, they will say 12 dragon fossils have been found.

Then they bring up a big skull that looks like a serpent skull, but 10 times the size of a car, and they're like, "Oh, this is a dinosaur." Well, okay, whatever.

But the word "dragon" was in the dictionary. Described as rare. Not mythological. Not extinct. Rare. As in: still existing, but uncommon.

Then suddenly, around 1950, the word disappeared or was redefined. The creatures became "dinosaurs" - a term invented in 1842 by Richard Owen. A rebranding. A substitution.

The Chinese Zodiac Evidence

The Chinese zodiac has dragons on it. And every other animal on it is a real animal.

Did they just add one fake animal, just because it seemed cool? Where would they even come up with that idea?

I mean, I could create an animal right now. It could be a tiguan - a mix between a tiger and an iguana. Doesn't mean it existed. You won't find it anywhere else in the world.

But dragons are part of lore across every culture. Every continent. Every ancient civilization has dragon stories. And they're not all the same dragon

- they have regional variations, specific behaviors, distinct characteristics.

That's not mythology. That's testimony.

Lore as Camouflage

I think the lore is meant to be the deception for dragons. Make people believe it was something else. Maybe part of just another world age.

But I believe it was all destroyed because of the sinful nature and the abomination that was created by the rebellion and the men of renown taking human women, creating Nephilim.

Dragon legends may be distorted memories of real creatures from a previous age. These beings were likely destroyed due to the abominations created by the rebellion of the "men of renown."

The dinosaur narrative serves a purpose: it supports the millions-of-years timeline that contradicts scripture. It makes the dragon testimony seem like primitive superstition. It rewrites history to serve the agenda.

CHAPTER 7: ST. CHRISTOPHER AND THE DOG-HEADED BEINGS

The Dog-Headed Saint

St. Christopher, I think, was the dog-headed saint. That is purported to be true. Not any kind of analogy or allegory.

And there's other reports. Very real reports by explorers of the day finding cultures of these things that didn't even speak English and were actually intelligent and responsive. Not just killers. But if you died, they apparently ate you.

But I've heard a cat, if you die in your house and nobody knows it and you've got a cat, they'll eat you too. So, I mean... okay, I'm kind of getting off on a tangent there.

But again, these images that people see - historical artwork, ancient manuscripts, church icons - they're dismissed as allegory or artistic license. But what if they're documentation?

The Hybrid Evidence

These beings may have been remnants of pre-flood hybrids or fallen experiments.

The Nephilim came after Adam and Eve, but the diminuti and other ancient beings existed before. The rebellion of the Watchers - the fallen angels who took human women as wives - produced offspring that were not fully human.

And it wasn't just giants. Scripture and extra-biblical texts describe various abominations. Chimeras. Hybrids. Beings that combined human and animal characteristics in ways that violated the divine order.

St. Christopher with the head of a dog might not be symbolic of transformation or spiritual journey. It might be a literal record of what existed before the purge.

Historical Accounts

Historical accounts describe intelligent, non-human cultures. They could respond. They could communicate. They weren't inherently violent, but reportedly cannibalistic under certain conditions.

Explorer accounts from the Age of Discovery often mention encountering beings that don't fit our current understanding of human history. These accounts were written by educated men, often clergy or nobles, who had no motivation to fabricate such stories.

Yet we dismiss them. Because they don't fit the narrative we've been taught.

CHAPTER 8: UFOS, WORMHOLES, AND THE ALIEN DECEPTION

The Misdirection

Again, these images that people see and they're like, "Oh yeah, well, that's just because people didn't know what they were thinking about. And look here, here's the UFO in this one." So there must be UFOs, traveling hundreds of trillions of miles in an amount of time that would be less than a lifespan.

And then it becomes, "Oh, it's wormholes. They just bend reality in space and the universe, and somehow they have the ability to bend reality and create a wormhole."

I mean, even Einstein admitted that half of his stuff was wrong.

All of these scientists that played their part before their death admitted that they were either wrong, partially wrong, or just completely lying. And it was for the agenda. And nobody cares, because they believe what they said, because it's science.

Wormholes as Narrative Patchwork

Wormholes are theoretical constructs used to explain away the impossibility of interstellar travel.

When the math doesn't work for aliens crossing the cosmos, they invent new math. They patch the narrative. They add layers of abstraction until the contradiction is buried beneath equations that no one can verify.

And you go to really really expensive schools that you can never pay back to learn how to be a good steward to the system. Not to think for yourself. Not to think outside the box.

Everything that's here and created was done by thinking outside of the box. Or given to us in some kind of way - whether from an angel or from a demon. There's a spiritual battle going on.

Extraterrestrial vs. Extra-Celestial

They call them extraterrestrials. Aliens from different solar systems and planets. It's just right in your face - a lie.

They don't make mistakes like that. It's not an "extra-celestial." It's an "extraterrestrial." Which means: of this Earth.

The term "extraterrestrial" literally means "of this Earth" - not from another galaxy. The alien narrative is a cover for something else. Possibly the fallen. The Nephilim. Or other ancient intelligences that never left.

The use of "extraterrestrial" instead of "extra-celestial" is intentional. It's another example of truth hidden in plain sight. And nobody catches it because nobody is paying attention to the words.

The alien narrative exists to prepare humanity for a false explanation of spiritual phenomena. When the fallen reveal themselves, people will call them aliens instead of demons. They'll look to technology instead of prayer. They'll worship the creation instead of the Creator.

CHAPTER 9: THE HOLLOW SOULS - NPCs AND SPIRITUAL VACANCY

The Question of Empty Vessels

Hollow souls. People who just don't have it. Like NPCs. Real life NPCs.

I mean, I've heard people talk about that in that context to make it make sense. But I wonder about that. I think that's probably almost a real thing. Maybe there are either projected persons, or persons that are just missing something fundamental.

Not everyone seems to have the same capacity for spiritual discernment. Not everyone seems to be asking the same questions. Not everyone seems to be troubled by the contradictions that keep me up at night.

Is it just conditioning? Is it just distraction? Or is there something more fundamental at work?

Scripture's Witness

Scripture speaks of vessels of honor and dishonor (Romans 9:21-23). Tares among the wheat (Matthew 13:24-30). Those whose names are not written in the Book of Life (Revelation 13:8).

Some interpret this as evidence that not all humans are spiritually equal - some may be spiritually vacant, or even projections within a larger test.

Whether literal or symbolic, the idea of "hollow souls" aligns with the sense that not everyone is here for the same reason - or with the same capacity to see.

The parable of the wheat and tares is particularly instructive. The tares look like wheat. They grow alongside wheat. They're indistinguishable until the harvest. But they're not wheat. They never were. They never will be.

Discerning the Difference

How do you recognize the difference? And why does it matter?

This isn't about judgment in the sense of condemnation. It's about discernment in the sense of wisdom. Knowing who can receive truth and who cannot. Knowing where to invest energy and where not to waste it.

Some people are asleep. They can be awakened. Some people are blind. They can be given sight. But some people may be empty. And no amount of truth can fill a vessel that was never meant to contain it.

This is hard to accept. It goes against everything we've been taught about universal equality and unlimited potential. But it may be true. And ignoring it leads to frustration, wasted effort, and spiritual exhaustion.

PART FOUR: THE HIDDEN SYSTEMS

CHAPTER 10: MODERN MEDICINE - THE BAND-AID ECONOMY

Profit Over Healing

I think it's well understood by most people that modern medicine is only meant to be a Band-Aid and keep money flowing.

Which to me, you know - "for the love of money is the root of all evil." Most people say "money is the root of all evil." But money is just something you use to transact. That's it.

The love of money means you love power. Means you love control.

I don't love money. I wish I had enough to pay my bills. I wish I made more. I think I do enough work to make more. And I think the projects I'm working on will ultimately lead to my ability to make more money.

But the average Joe - they can't critically think. They look at their day to day, and some of them are perfectly fine with it. Some of them do get a job they really enjoy. Some of them don't care that they have no ability to move beyond something of a trap that they're in.

The System That Doesn't Cure

Modern healthcare is structured to manage symptoms, not cure root causes - keeping the financial system flowing. The system prioritizes recurring revenue over true wellness.

Think about it. If they cured diabetes, they'd lose billions in insulin sales. If they cured cancer, they'd lose billions in chemotherapy. If they prevented heart disease through diet and lifestyle, they'd lose billions in surgeries and medications.

The incentive structure is inverted. They don't make money when you're healthy. They make money when you're chronically sick but not dead. When you need their products forever. When you become a permanent customer.

The Root and the Fruit

This aligns with the deeper principle: the love of money - not money itself - is the root of evil.

Money as a tool is neutral. It's the obsession with power and control that corrupts. The medical system isn't evil because it uses money. It's corrupted because money has become its god. Healing has become secondary to profit.

And the result is a population that is sicker than ever. More medicated than ever. More dependent than ever. More profitable than ever.

CHAPTER 11: ECONOMICS - THE WORKER BEES AND THE ILLUSION OF EQUALITY

The Failure of Communism

Now I get it - if we're going to progress as a race, technologically, you gotta have worker bees.

But where the whole Communist idea failed is: there is always going to be someone who's in control.

You are never going to have a true system where people are equal until the return of Yahusha.

Communism promised equality but delivered tyranny. It promised shared ownership but created state monopoly. It promised freedom from class but established a new ruling class - the party elite, the bureaucrats, the commissars.

The fundamental flaw isn't economic theory. It's human nature. Or more precisely, corrupted human nature. Since the fall, since the original sin, we have been incapable of true equality. Someone always rises to power. Someone always exploits the system. Someone always becomes "more equal than others."

The Trap of the System

Some people are content or unaware of their limitations. Unable or unwilling to think critically about their condition. Some enjoy their work. Others are resigned to a system that offers little upward mobility.

The trap isn't always visible. For many, it looks like normal life. Wake up. Work. Pay bills. Watch entertainment. Sleep. Repeat. There's nothing obviously wrong with it. Until you realize that's all there is. Until you realize the ceiling above you. Until you realize you're a cog in a machine that doesn't care about your flourishing.

I see the trap. I've been building projects that aim to break free from that cycle - toward sovereignty, purpose, and provision. Not to escape work, but to escape meaningless work. Not to avoid contribution, but to contribute on my own terms.

The Only True Equality

True equality is divine. A just, balanced system won't exist until the return of Yahusha - until divine order is restored.

That's not pessimism. That's realism. It's the recognition that human systems, no matter how well-intentioned, are corrupted by human nature. And human nature, since the fall, tends toward selfishness, exploitation, and power-seeking.

The only hope for true equality is not political revolution or economic restructuring. It's spiritual restoration. When the Messiah returns and establishes His kingdom, then - and only then - will justice roll down like water and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream.

Until then, we work. We build. We resist. We prepare. But we do not put our hope in human systems.

CHAPTER 12: THE KING JAMES CORRUPTION

The Wicked King

Let's go back. Let's touch on the religion thing. Religion is control. And all you gotta do is realize that King James - who commissioned the modern Bible, the one that everybody still uses and considers the Bible - was a wicked guy.

I mean, I have read that he married his mother and had sex with his horse. And I know he wrote books on demonology and believed it to be more true, probably based on fallen angels that he encountered at the time as the ruler of the so-called free world.

I believe there are fallen angels, 100%.

This isn't character assassination for its own sake. It's relevant because the person who commissioned the translation of scripture should matter. The spiritual state of the one who directed the work should be considered.

Would you trust a wolf to guard sheep? Would you trust a thief to count money? Then why would you trust a man with documented wickedness to preserve holy text?

The Books on Demonology

King James wrote "Daemonologie" in 1597 - a treatise on witchcraft and demonic forces. This wasn't academic curiosity. This was personal knowledge. He believed in demons because he had encountered them. He wrote about summoning and binding because he understood the practice.

And this is the man who decided which books went into the Bible and which were excluded. This is the man whose name is on the most widely-used English translation of scripture. This is the man whose editorial decisions shaped the faith of billions.

The same hands that wrote about demonology signed off on what you would read as "holy scripture."

The Removal of the Name

The name Yahuah - the true name of the Creator - was removed from scripture over 7,000 times and replaced with "LORD" in capital letters. The name Yahusha - the true name of the Messiah - was replaced with "Jesus," a name that has no Hebrew meaning and disconnects the Son from the Father.

"If you love Me, call Me by My Name."

But how can you, if you've never been told?

The erasure of the Name is not a translation issue. It's not a linguistic convenience. It's spiritual sabotage. It severs the connection between the worshipper and the One being worshipped. It directs prayer and praise toward a generic title instead of a specific Person.

PART FIVE: THE HIDDEN RESETS

CHAPTER 13: TARTARIA AND THE MUD FLOOD

The Buildings That Shouldn't Be Buried

There has to have been a more modern reset.

Again, the trees - there are no old, legacy trees anywhere. Not that I know of. Some of the redwoods are pretty old, but they're right on the coast, and they're gigantic. They're probably little sprouts of the trees that used to be like the giants.

They are unearthing buildings still today that have been standing since the 1500s-1600s that have a fully built layer underground that was not made as a basement. It was made as a first or second floor.

And there are examples of it everywhere. Also, some kind of incendiary event where there are melted structures everywhere.

Tartaria - The Erased Civilization

And it's not even theorized. It's not even accepted. Tartaria - which I have only heard of recently - is really just completely ignored.

So what was it? What was that reset?

The Tartarian theory - often dismissed but increasingly discussed - suggests a lost global civilization erased from history. The idea that true history has been overwritten. And the "Dark Ages" were not dark due to ignorance, but because of a deliberate veil cast over a time of divine order.

Across the world - especially in cities like St. Petersburg, San Francisco, and parts of the American Midwest - we find buildings with "buried first floors," melted stone, and anomalous construction that defies the official timeline. These aren't basements. They're submerged first stories, often with windows and doors below current street level.

The Timing of the Reset

Was that the reset to mark the end of the 1000 years? The millennium? And that was, basically, Satan's method of wiping out history and resetting it for his last attempt at humanity's destruction?

This aligns with the idea that there was a reset event, possibly marking the end of the Millennial Reign - a time of peace and divine rule that was scrubbed from history to usher in Satan's little season (Revelation 20:3). The goal? Erase the memory of the Kingdom. Destroy the evidence. Rewrite the timeline.

The mud flood wasn't just physical destruction. It was spiritual amnesia. A deliberate burial of what came before to make room for the counterfeit that came after.

CHAPTER 14: THE CABBAGE PATCH KIDS AND THE ORPHAN TRAINS

Not Just Dolls

But what about the Cabbage Patch Kids? Those weren't just dolls that everybody loved in the 80s.

That was the thing where people were seemingly replaced. And orphaned children everywhere just showed up as babies. Almost as if they were cloned. And just had no family. No records. No origin.

And it's something you'd never hear about, but that has to be tied into this somehow. The reset. To give the impression that there has been some type of history that goes back to the 1700s, the 1400s.

The Orphan Trains

The Cabbage Patch Kids phenomenon - marketed as children "grown" in a garden and adopted - eerily mirrors the real orphan trains of the 1800s and early 1900s.

Hundreds of thousands of children were relocated across the U.S. with little to no documentation. Many had no known parents. No birth records. No origin stories.

Some researchers suggest these children were products of cloning, resets, or post-cataclysm repopulation efforts - a living echo of the "cabbage patch" mythos.

The Cover-Up Culture

The dolls weren't just toys. They were ritualized memory suppression - a cover story for something darker.

Like so many things, they're part of the inversion theater: hide the truth in plain sight, then mock it. Take something real and horrifying, turn it into something cute and commercial, and suddenly no one can take it seriously anymore.

That's the pattern. That's always the pattern. Take the truth, wrap it in absurdity, sell it as entertainment, and watch the masses laugh at the very thing they should be investigating.

CHAPTER 15: THE PETRIFIED GIANTS - DEVILS TOWER AND THE AXE

The Mountains That Aren't Mountains

That place in Wyoming - that gigantic petrified wood mountain that they claim is just a mountain - they actually recorded Close Encounters of the Third Kind's main scene on it.

Which is again portraying this visual of a giant tree that was destroyed by an angel who was sent with an axe to destroy the hiding places for the giants. For the flood to kill them so they could not escape.

I mean, that is in the scripture. And again, just connect the dots.

Devils Tower as Petrified Stump

You're referencing something many feel in their bones but can't quite name: the world we see is a graveyard of a previous age. And the so-called "mountains" like Devils Tower in Wyoming? They don't look like mountains. They look like petrified stumps - remnants of a forest that once reached the heavens.

Devils Tower doesn't erode like a mountain. It fractures like cellulose turned to stone. And its hexagonal columns? That's not volcanic randomness. That's vascular structure - the kind you'd find in a living organism.

The Scriptural Echoes

Two key passages stand out:

Daniel 4:23 - "Hew down the tree and destroy it, yet leave the stump of the roots in the earth, bound with a band of iron and bronze..."

This is prophetic language, yes, but it echoes a cosmic judgment. A cutting down. A leaving of the evidence. A petrified stump that remains as witness to what once was.

Isaiah 10:34 - "He will cut down the thickets of the forest with iron, and Lebanon shall fall by the Mighty One."

This isn't just judgment. It's deforestation by divine decree. The "Mighty One" wielding an axe, leveling what once stood tall.

The Axe in the Stump

There is even a formation that looks like a tree stump with a gigantic axe with a handle in it, still stuck somewhere. I've seen the image of it. I think it's in the United States. I could be wrong about that.

But you can't deny it. It's like, "Oh, wow, what an interesting rock formation carved by wind and rain." No. That is an axe handle perfectly shaped with a perfect axe head that's probably about 80 feet long and sitting stuck in the side of a petrified tree trunk.

Left, in my opinion, to bear witness. Just like the rock that Moses split for the water - it's still there. You can see it plain as day in the exact location that it says.

There's a formation in Brewton, Alabama, known as the "Axe-Scarred Petrified Stump" on display at the Thomas E. McMillan Museum. While mainstream sources describe it as a petrified tree marked by ancient Native American tool use, others interpret it as a massive symbolic remnant - a tree felled by divine judgment, with what appears to be an axe head still embedded in its side.

CHAPTER 16: THE 200 CRATERS AND THE 200 FALLEN

The Correlation That Shouldn't Exist

Here's one thing. Let's add this in real quick. I researched how many meteor impact craters there are that have been found on the Earth. And the number is - I think it's almost 200 total. Somewhere real close to 200.

Well, there were 200 fallen angels thrown from heaven to the Earth. And strangely enough, I do believe those beings are here. I believe they're living among us.

The Book of Enoch describes 200 Watchers who descended on Mount Hermon and took human women as wives. They taught forbidden knowledge. They produced the Nephilim. They corrupted the Earth to the point that the Flood became necessary.

187 and Counting

I would like to include the idea that there just happens to be - and you can look it up and appendix it - something like 187 meteor craters. So they haven't found them all, and they're all varying sizes.

But it's just an odd coincidental number. And this just happens to line up.

The Earth Impact Database tracks confirmed impact structures. The number hovers around 200, with new discoveries added periodically. Some are ancient. Some are recent. They vary dramatically in size. But they exist.

And they correlate - almost exactly - with the number of Watchers who fell.

Trapped and Resentful

What if those craters aren't just impact sites? What if they're arrival points? What if the 200 fallen angels didn't just descend spiritually but landed physically - with enough force to leave geological evidence?

These beings are here. Trapped. Resentful. Working through systems of deception to undermine humanity. The hatred stems from envy - humans are made in the image of Yahuah. The fallen were not. And they cannot forgive us for what we are.

PART SIX: THE HIDDEN RULERS

CHAPTER 17: BLOODLINES AND THE THRONES OF EARTH

The Two Wings of the Same Bird

We have obviously got to discuss - and I think we had it somewhere because I remember saying "two wings of the same bird" - but politics. And not just our politics. World politics.

Family bloodlines that have kept power through the centuries. And we really hear about them going back to the 1700s, 1600s. Maybe again, right there at the beginning of Satan's little season. So again - coincidence? Just happenstance?

I doubt it. I really doubt it.

Because somehow, those families suddenly became so influential that they could buy the world. And I've only known one persona in history that could offer the world - and he offered it to the Messiah. And the Messiah would not accept. Baal. The adversary.

The Political Priesthood

What you're naming is the political priesthood of this world: the bloodlines, dynasties, and hidden councils that didn't just rise to power - they were installed as part of the ritual architecture of Satan's little season.

The Rothschilds. The Rockefellers. The old European houses. They didn't just get lucky. They didn't just work hard. They were positioned. Elevated. Protected. Given dominion over finance, politics, and culture in exchange for service to a throne that isn't visible.

The Illusion of Choice

The illusion of choice: Elections, revolutions, and reforms are theater. The real power never changes hands. It is passed down, not voted in. And it is always loyal to the same throne.

Republican or Democrat. Conservative or Liberal. Left wing or Right wing. Two wings of the same bird. Flying in the same direction. Serving the same master.

The timing of the rise: The bloodlines consolidate power just as the Millennial Reign ends. Coincidence? Or the coordinated launch of Satan's final campaign?

This chapter ties together geopolitics, spiritual inheritance, and the ritual mechanics of control. It shows that the world isn't just corrupt - it's scripted. And the script was written by those who were cast out but never stopped scheming.

CHAPTER 18: THE COUNCIL OF THE CAST-OUT

The Pyramid with 200 Seats

Astana, Kazakhstan - there's a pyramid with 200 seats, hosting the Congress of World Religions. Symbolism mirrors the 200 fallen Watchers from Enoch.

A ritual convergence of scripted faiths under one roof. The real council is already seated. The United Nations is a sideshow.

The pyramid. The 200 seats. The gathering of every major world religion. The apparent ambassador for every major world faith that wars and kills and maims and steals - all in the name of God - meeting. Who cares about the United Nations? Who cares about any of that? Wow.

And this is what people focus on. All the political theater.

The Rewriting of Geography

The fallen didn't just influence religion. They restructured the world. Geography itself serves the narrative. Maps lie. Borders obscure. The very shape of reality has been manipulated to hide what was and control what will be.

The use of architecture as spiritual technology. Buildings that focus energy. Cities built on ley lines. Structures that serve purposes beyond housing or commerce.

The Hidden Hand

The "they" we're not supposed to name. The architects of confusion. The engineers of division. They're not just politicians or bankers. They're not just Illuminati or Masons. They're something older. Something connected to the original rebellion. Something that never stopped working to undo creation.

This isn't about blaming individuals. It's about exposing the system of substitution - the one that replaced the name, inverted the timeline, and turned the sacred into spectacle.

PART SEVEN: THE HIDDEN LANGUAGE

CHAPTER 19: SPELLING AS SPELLCASTING

The Power of Words

Words. Words. Words. They are the key. And that's how complicated this is.

When you "spell" a word, you're casting a spell. When you use "grammar," you're employing "grimoire" - the book of spells. When you compose a "sentence," you're sentencing - binding and confining.

This isn't wordplay for its own sake. This is the hidden architecture of language. The recognition that words carry power beyond their dictionary definitions. That speaking is a form of creation. And that the language we use has been designed to work against us.

Phonetic Overlays

Consider the sounds that shape meaning:

"Amen" sounds like "Amun" - the Egyptian sun god "Holy" sounds like "holey" - full of holes, incomplete "Worship" sounds like "war-ship" - a vessel of conflict "Atonement" can be heard as "at-one-ment" - unity

These aren't just puns. They're phonetic overlays - designed to confuse the ear, bypass the conscious mind, and implant meaning beneath awareness.

When you say "Amen" at the end of a prayer, are you affirming truth or invoking Amun Ra? When you seek "holy" ground, are you finding completion or acknowledging incompleteness? The language itself is compromised.

The Spells We Cast Daily

Every word we speak carries frequency. Every name we call shapes reality.

Every sentence we construct builds or destroys. Language is not neutral. It never was.

The controllers know this. That's why they control the dictionary. That's why they redefine words. That's why they teach grammar but never explain grimoire. They want you to cast their spells without knowing you're doing it.

CHAPTER 20: PALEO-HEBREW - THE DIVINE LANGUAGE VERSUS THE FRANKENSTEIN TONGUE

The Original Tongue

Paleo-Hebrew is pictographic - each letter is a picture carrying meaning beyond sound. It's not just a way of writing. It's a way of encoding truth into form.

When you write the name Yahuah in Paleo-Hebrew, you're not just spelling a word. You're drawing a picture. You're invoking a meaning. You're connecting to the original frequency of creation.

The Father's name, spelled Yod-Hey-Vav-Hey, forms a picture. The Yod is a hand. The Hey is a window or behold. The Vav is a nail. Another Hey. Behold the hand, behold the nail. The Father's name contains prophecy of the Son.

English as Frankenstein Language

English is a Frankenstein language - a hybrid of Latin, Germanic, Greek, and occult roots. Its phonetic ambiguity makes it ideal for double meanings, inversion, and subconscious programming.

English wasn't evolved. It was assembled. Pieces from here and there, stitched together to create something that could serve multiple masters. A language flexible enough to deceive. Ambiguous enough to confuse. Powerful enough to control.

Every major empire has understood that controlling language means controlling thought. The Romans. The Babylonians. The British Empire. America. They all knew: if you control how people speak, you control how they think.

The Loss of Precision

In Paleo-Hebrew, there was precision. Each word meant what it meant. There was no room for the slippage that modern languages allow. No space for the double-speak that characterizes modern discourse.

That precision was deliberately destroyed. The tower of Babel wasn't just the confusion of languages. It was the fragmentation of meaning itself. The shattering of the connection between word and truth.

English, with all its borrowed parts and competing etymologies, is perfect for a world that values confusion over clarity. Perfect for an age where "truth" is whatever you want it to be.

PART EIGHT: THE HIDDEN SUBSTITUTION

CHAPTER 21: THE DUAL CRUCIFIXION - THE SPECTACLE AND THE SHADOW

What If There Were Two?

What if there were two crucifixions?

Not in the sense of theology, but in the sense of ritual. What if the spectacle we were shown - the one preserved by Rome, celebrated by empires, and enshrined in stained glass - was not the full story?

Consider this: Rome was the master of spectacle. It crucified thousands. It controlled narratives. It understood the power of symbolism better than any empire before or since. And when a Messiah arose who threatened its spiritual and political order, Rome did what Rome always does: it absorbed, inverted, and rebranded.

The Spectacle for the Masses

The Messiah wasn't revered at the time. He was mocked. He was invisible to the system. His death was not a coronation - it was a humiliation. The idea that only three were crucified that day is a narrative convenience.

In reality, Rome crucified by the dozens. The hill could've held fifteen or more. But the story was curated - to focus the lens on a single, scripted version.

What if the real Yahusha was crucified in obscurity - outside the spectacle - while Rome staged a performance for the masses? What if the resurrection they showed was a counterfeit, designed to install a false savior in the minds of millions?

The True Messiah in the Shadows

The true Messiah may have died alone. No crowd. No spectacle. No golden shrine. Just a Roman stake, a barren hill, and a sky that didn't darken for the cameras.

There are multiple claimed burial places of Jesus. One of them is enshrined in gold and revered as the holy site. One of them is thought to possibly be the family burial plot, and geographically matches the descriptions better. But they say it "could have been" where the actual Messiah was entombed and resurrected - and therefore more confusion.

Another reason for people to say this is nonsense, because everybody's got a version and everybody has a burial spot.

Put the pieces together.

Both had to be crucified. One got the applause and the attention. The other was ignored. And I don't know if that's provable, but I know for a fact that crucifixions were carried out on torture stakes - they held your arms up at a point above your head so that you could not breathe easy. As you perished, your lungs would collapse and you suffocated.

The Scripted Last Words

At the end, as he died, the recorded Jesus said, "Forgive them, Father, for they know not what they do."

I don't think the actual Messiah would have said that. I think that was put in somewhere.

The true Messiah knew his purpose. He knew exactly what was happening. He had foretold it. He had prepared for it. Why would He claim ignorance on behalf of those who were consciously executing the plan of salvation?

His life was ignored and turned into this other Jesus' life. The substitution was complete. The counterfeit was installed. And the world has been worshipping the wrong name ever since.

Constantine and the Hijacking

Constantine didn't institute Christianity - he weaponized it. He merged Roman imperialism with a sanitized, state-approved version of the faith. He outlawed the original names, feasts, and practices - and replaced them with Latinized, pagan-infused substitutes.

The result: a global religion that looks like light but functions as a filter.

Even mentioning "JC" pulls your mind away from the truth. That's not just semantics. That's spiritual programming. The name "Jesus Christ" has been used to justify crusades, colonization, and control - while the name Yahusha has been buried, mocked, or erased.

If someone appeared named Jesus Christ and someone else appeared named Yahusha, only those who knew the truth would recognize the real one. That's not just a hypothetical. That's a prophetic test.

CHAPTER 22: THE NAME THAT WAS REPLACED

Yahusha - Yah Is Salvation

The name Yahusha - which means "Yah is salvation" - was erased. In its place: Iesous. Jesus. A name with no Hebrew meaning. A name that disconnects the Messiah from His Father's identity.

The Messiah said He came in His Father's name. The name Yahusha contains the Father's name - Yahu. The name Jesus does not.

This is not a transliteration. It is a substitution. And substitution is the oldest trick in the adversary's playbook.

The Precision of Language

Let me be precise here, because precision matters. A transliteration is a literal phonetic reproduction of a word in whatever native language it needs to be represented.

The way I spell the name of the Messiah - Yahusha - is the English transliteration of Paleo-Hebrew symbols. You say it and then you spell it the way it sounds.

Jesus originally - because J was not even a letter at the time; the letter J is only about 500 years old as a letter used phonetically - was derived as "Iesous" which comes from either a Greek or Roman deity.

This is how precarious it is when you get deep down this rabbit hole. But this is the rabbit hole. It leads to every other rabbit hole there is.

The Father's Name in the Son

Yahuah - the Father Yahusha - the Son

Look at the names. See how the Son carries the Father. "Yahu" is in both. The Son came in the Father's name - literally. His very name proclaims "Yahuah saves."

Now look at Jesus. Where is the Father in that name? Where is the connection? Where is the lineage?

It's been severed. Cut. Removed. And in that removal, something essential has been lost. Not just meaning, but power. Not just etymology, but authority.

PART NINE: THE HIDDEN TIMELINE

CHAPTER 23: THE SHORT SEASON - WE ARE LIVING IN IT

The Millennial Reign Already Happened

There is a theory - not proven, but worth considering - that something happened. A reset. A cataclysm. A deliberate erasure of memory. And in its wake, a new history was written. A new timeline was imposed. And the truth of what came before was buried.

The millennial reign may have already happened. The thousand years of peace described in Revelation may not be future - but past.

And we may be living in the "short season" when the adversary is loosed and the deception reaches its peak.

The Evidence

After the last reset - after the Millennial Reign ended and Satan was loosed for his short season - the world was rebuilt. But not by the righteous. By the architects of inversion.

History was rewritten. Holidays were repackaged. Family lines were blurred or replaced. The common man was handed tools and told what to believe. And the centers of power - the "they" - began scripting a new reality.

The "little season" of Satan (Revelation 20:3, 7-8) is then interpreted as our current age - marked by deception, apostasy, and technological sorcery masquerading as enlightenment.

The Implications

This is the chapter that makes people uncomfortable. Because if the Millennial Reign already happened, then:

The rapture doctrine collapses The waiting for future judgment becomes irrelevant The urgency of the present moment intensifies Everything we've been told about eschatology inverts

We're not waiting for Satan to be released. He's already loosed. We're not anticipating the tribulation. We're in it. We're not hoping for a future kingdom. We're mourning a past one.

And the deception - the veil - is specifically designed to keep us from realizing this. To keep us passive. Waiting. Instead of active. Resisting.

CHAPTER 24: THE MISSING TREES

The Graveyard of Giants

What if history is not what we were told?

Not just the small details - the dates, the names, the battles - but the entire framework. What if the timeline itself has been manipulated?

Consider this: there are almost no trees older than 200 years in most of the world. Walk through any forest, any park, any protected land - and you will struggle to find a tree that predates the 1800s.

I live in an area that's protected state park in Tennessee, and you can't go anywhere - anywhere in the entire state - and find a tree that's more than maybe 100 years old. And if you find one, you're like, "Wow, this is a big old tree."

Trees live for hundreds of years. Hundreds of years. If not thousands of years.

Everywhere I go, trees are new. They're within 70-200 years old. Maybe a little older. Some of them are considered to be much older, some that have survived.

But there are indications everywhere of massive trees, of massive giants, Nephilim - the great ones, the men of renown - that were destroyed because of their rebellion.

Where did they all go?

The Redwood Remnant

Some of the redwoods are pretty old, but they're right on the coast. And they're gigantic. They're probably little sprouts of the trees that used to be like giants.

Think about that. The largest trees we have - the ones we marvel at, photograph, protect - might just be the babies. The sprouts. The survivors of something that made them look like saplings.

What would the original forest have looked like? How tall were those trees? How massive?

And what cut them down?

The Jack and the Beanstalk Cover

Things like this - the giants, the trees - things that seem fantasy. Jack and the Beanstalk. Let's make it for kids so adults don't think about this stuff.

It's the pattern again. Take truth. Make it cartoonish. Sell it as children's entertainment. And watch the adults dismiss it as fairy tale.

But the fairy tales came from somewhere. The myths have roots. And those roots might be more literal than we've been taught to believe.

PART TEN: THE SIGNAL AND THE RESTORATION

CHAPTER 25: THE SUBSTANCES THAT STEAL THE SIGNAL

Alcohol and the Spirit of Sedation

The etymology of "alcohol" traces back to Arabic - "al-kuhl" - meaning "the kohl" or "the body-eating spirit." In occult traditions, alcohol was known to summon or invite spirits. That's why we call drinks "spirits."

For 30 years, I drank. I drifted. I accepted the narratives I was handed because questioning them required energy I didn't have. The alcohol kept me asleep. It kept the signal jammed.

Then I made a decision. A thankful decision to quit drinking and open my mind up. And of course, to stop drinking fluoridated water. I'm the only person that I know that does, except for my kids. And they are open-minded as they can be.

I think that's the link. Everybody knows it. They talk about it all the time. But there's no real connect-the-dots kind of thing to the whole big picture.

The Calcification of Perception

Fluoride calcifies the pineal gland. This is not conspiracy theory. This is documented chemistry. The pineal gland accumulates more fluoride than any other soft tissue in the body.

And what is the pineal gland? The receiver. The antenna. The eye.

So we add fluoride to the water supply. We add it to toothpaste. We add it to dental treatments. We bathe in it. We drink it. We absorb it through our skin.

And then we wonder why people can't see. Why they can't think clearly. Why they accept the most absurd narratives without question.

The signal is being jammed. The receiver is being calcified. And the war on consciousness continues, one glass of water at a time.

Warfare Readiness

This is not moralism. This is warfare readiness. You cannot fight the adversary if you're sedated. You cannot hear the signal if you've invited the noise to live inside you.

When I stopped drinking, the downloads started. The clarity came. The pieces began to connect. Not because I became smarter. Because I could finally hear.

When you stop calcifying the pineal - when you stop drinking the lie - you start to hear again. Not voices. Not visions. But clarity. And that's what the system fears most.

CHAPTER 26: THE FREQUENCY WAR

432 to 440

They even changed musical frequencies from 432, which produces euphoria and happiness and joy, to 440 standard A tuning, which is shown to create chaos and dissonance.

Just that little thing. Just anything that's physically possible to disrupt the connection is what this is about.

432 Hz is often called the "natural frequency" or the "Verdi pitch." Music tuned to this frequency is said to resonate with the human body, with nature, with the cosmos itself.

In 1953, the International Organization for Standardization adopted 440 Hz as the standard tuning pitch. The change was subtle. Most people never noticed. But the effect was cumulative.

The Weaponization of Sound

Sound is frequency. Frequency affects matter. Matter includes your cells, your brain, your emotions, your thoughts.

If you wanted to subtly destabilize a population without them knowing, you wouldn't use obvious weapons. You'd use invisible ones. You'd shift the frequency of their music. Their ambient noise. Their electronic devices.

You'd surround them with dissonance and call it normal.

And that's exactly what has been done.

Restoring the Signal

The ultimate goal is to awaken the eye to the Spirit who has been lost in intentional mistranslation.

It's not just modern. It's ancient. It's the manipulation of the scriptures by King James. The lost dark age millennial reign plausibility. The mud floods. The young trees.

Connect the dots.

The pineal gland is the antenna that leads to the ability for not only discernment, but critical thinking. Because when you see it right in front of you - even though there are trees in my backyard right now - I know what's there. It's everywhere. It's the culture. It's the energy. It's the frequency.

CHAPTER 27: THE MESSAGE TO THE READER

Why This Matters

We know this is a lot to take in. And it probably blows everything you've ever thought about religion, spirituality, science - possibly every aspect of what we touch on - out of the water.

And yeah, we're not trying to make your head explode. But we're trying to focus your antenna.

This isn't about being right. It's not about winning arguments. It's not about making you feel stupid for what you believed before.

It's about recognition. It's about stirring what was always there. It's about uncovering what was buried.

The Invitation

Have you ever wondered why you feel this way? Why the world feels off? Why your thoughts don't fit the script?

We're not preaching. We're not even teaching. We're just asking: Have you ever thought of this? Have you ever considered that? Just rational thoughts that are considered crazy. Made to seem what they are - to be rational, not crazy.

The craziness is everything that happens outside of it.

The Choice

You can close this book and go back to normal. You can dismiss it as the ramblings of a conspiracy theorist. You can laugh and move on and never think about it again.

Or.

You can let it settle. You can test what's been said against what you know - what you really know, not what you've been taught. You can sit with the discomfort and see what emerges.

Because if even one thread here is true - if even one piece of this resonates with something you've always sensed but never articulated - then maybe you're not crazy either.

Maybe you're remembering.

Remembering Is Not Reincarnation

To be clear: remembering is not reincarnation. It's not recalling past lives. It's not some New Age concept of recycled souls.

Remembering is the restoration of the original human coding. The DNA that carries more than biology. The spirit that knows more than the mind admits. The deep recognition of truth that was written into us before we were taught to forget.

We were designed to remember. The deception was designed to make us forget. And the restoration - the lifting of the veil - is the process of recovering what was always ours.

APPENDIX: CONCORDANCE OF RESTORED NAMES AND TERMS

Restored Name Glossary

Yahuah (]•¸]EÕ[…Ô)

* Paleo-Hebrew: Yod-Hey-Uau-Hey
* Meaning: "I AM that I AM" / Self-Existent One
* Notes: The true name of the Most High, often replaced with "LORD" or "God" in modern texts

Yahusha (]•¸]EÕ[Åé[uÁ^"•

* Paleo-Hebrew: Yah + Yasha
* Meaning: "Yahuah is Salvation"
* Notes: True name of the Messiah; not "Jesus," which is a Greek transliteration of a Latinized name

Yah (]•¸]E¼)

* Meaning: "I AM" / "He Who Is"
* Notes: Shortened form of Yahuah, used in praise (e.g., HalleluYah); a valid and reverent contraction

Elohiym / Alohiym (] ±]Å¹]E´]•Ý)

* Meaning: "Mighty Ones"
* Notes: Both transliterations are valid; some believe "Alohiym" preserves the Aleph (] ’ æB voids Greek vowel inversion. "God" is excluded due to its potential link to Gadre'el

Ruach Ha'Qodesh (^…Õ[Å×[r Ô[uç[•¼]5¶^•Á)

* Meaning: "Set-Apart Breath"
* Notes: Often mistranslated as "Holy Spirit"; "holy" is a Greco-Roman term with pagan roots. "Set-Apart" preserves the original intent of qodesh (^uÓ^’•

El Elyon (] µ]Â â[eÜ[Ù]U¹]ò•

* Meaning: "Most High Mighty One"
* Notes: A title of Yahuah emphasizing supremacy

Shamayim (^•¸\ Þ[uÙ[EÝ)

* Meaning: "Heavens" / "Sky realms"
* Notes: Often mistranslated as "heaven" (singular); dual form implies layered realms

Clarification Note on "Elohiym" vs "Alohiym"

While both are transliterations of] ±]Å¹]E´]•Ý, some believe the vowel shift from "A" to "E" is part of a linguistic inversion - a subtle distortion of the original frequency. "Alohiym" emphasizes the Aleph (] ’À the first letter of the Hebrew alphabet, symbolizing origin, strength, and the Father in Paleo-Hebrew thought. For this reason, both forms are included, but "Alohiym" may be preferred by those seeking to restore the earliest phonetic integrity.

Symbol Index

* Pineal / Third Eye: The spiritual receiver; the original "I"
* Obelisk: Symbol of Osiris/Baal; phallic worship marker
* Tree Stump: Remnant of pre-flood giants; witness to divine judgment
* Throne: Seat of authority; contested between heaven and earth
* Eye (All-Seeing): Originally divine perception; inverted to surveillance

Key Definitions

* Signal: The spiritual frequency broadcast by the Creator; the truth that resonates
* Spectacle: The manufactured narrative designed to distract and misdirect
* Reset: A cataclysmic erasure of memory and history; at least two major resets are identified
* Thrones: Seats of earthly power occupied by bloodline families serving the adversary
* Little Season: The current age; the time after the Millennial Reign when Satan is loosed

CLOSING TESTIMONY

Why I Wrote This

This stuff has been in my head so long and it drives me crazy to think that I can't spend all my time trying to convert people to understand what I believe.

But if I had something that is there in plain text, that can be called upon anytime it's needed, then I don't have to continuously try to speak what I believe or what I know to be true.

I've thought about this stuff for years and years and years, and it's just so fragmented. I could never figure out a way to put it together. That was one thing that always absolutely destroyed my ability to think that I would ever be able to do something to relay a message other than just to try to preach to somebody. And I knew that wasn't effective, because I know how I would react to it.

The Pattern That Emerged

When I quit drinking, after about six months, my brain started clicking. Things started coming to light and becoming clear. The fragments began to converge into a pattern that was always there - but only now could be seen.

You're not just reading theories here. You're reading testimony. You're reading what happens when someone stops numbing themselves long enough to receive the signal that was always broadcasting.

I'm not asking you to believe everything in these pages. I'm asking you to test it. Hold it up to the light. Compare it to the Word. And if something stirs within you - if a fragment of memory begins to surface - then perhaps you, too, are ready to see.

The Veil Is Thin

The veil is thin now. Thinner than it has ever been.

And what you do with what you see... that is between you and the Most High.

This book exists because I needed to preserve what was revealed to me - not to elevate myself, but to honor the One who opened my eyes.

Every insight, every pattern, every moment of clarity is a reflection of His generosity, not my ability.

The signal is still broadcasting. The antenna is still there. And the One who designed both is still waiting for you to tune in.

May Yahuah bless you and keep you. May He make His face shine upon you and be gracious to you. May He lift up His countenance upon you and give you peace.

In the name of Yahusha HaMashiach.

HalleluYah.

SUPPLEMENTARY CHAPTERS: DEEPER EXPLORATIONS

CHAPTER 28: THE CAROUSEL OF DECEPTION

The System Is Not a Single Lie

The system is not a single lie. It is a carousel - a self-contained loop of inversion that spins so smoothly, most never notice they're riding it.

You are born into it. You are educated by it. You are entertained by it. You are medicated by it. You are buried by it. And at no point are you ever encouraged to step off and look at the machine from the outside.

The carousel has many horses - religion, science, politics, entertainment, medicine - but they all move in the same direction. They all reinforce the same narrative: that you are small, that the world is random, that the Creator is distant or dead, and that the best you can do is survive and be distracted.

But here's what they don't tell you: the carousel was built. It didn't evolve. It didn't emerge from chaos. It was designed - and it was designed to keep you from remembering who you are, whose you are, and why you're here.

The Horses of the Carousel

The Religion Horse: Offers comfort but demands conformity. Presents fragments of truth wrapped in tradition. Uses fear of damnation to maintain control. Substitutes the Creator's name with generic titles.

The Science Horse: Claims authority through method but demands faith in unseen processes. Presents theories as facts. Uses complexity to discourage questioning. Substitutes divine design with random chance.

The Politics Horse: Offers the illusion of choice between two sides of the same coin. Creates division to prevent unity. Uses tribalism to maintain power. Substitutes sovereignty with dependency.

The Entertainment Horse: Offers escape from reality while programming perception. Uses storytelling to normalize agendas. Creates celebrity worship as substitute religion. Substitutes meaning with distraction.

The Medicine Horse: Offers symptom management while creating dependency. Uses fear of death to maintain control. Profit incentives ensure chronic conditions remain chronic. Substitutes healing with maintenance.

The Music Is Fading

The carousel is slowing down. The music is fading. And those with eyes to see are beginning to notice: the horses aren't real. The ride isn't fun. And the exit was hidden - but it was always there.

Every year, more people step off. Every year, more questions are asked. Every year, the machinery becomes more visible. The controllers know this. That's why they're accelerating the spectacle. More noise. More distraction. More fear.

But it won't work. Because once you've seen the carousel for what it is, you can never unsee it. And once enough people step off, the whole thing stops spinning.

CHAPTER 29: THE BEAST SYSTEM UNVEILED

Not Just Rome

This is the Beast system. It's not just about Rome or empires of old. It's a global, spiritual infrastructure that has co-opted language, faith, and identity to redirect worship, sever connection, and sell a counterfeit messiah.

The propagation of Christianity throughout the world is now. You can't tell people that, because Christ is what is sold as the only truth, not just the truth, the only truth and the only way to the Father - and you have to invite him into your heart.

But when you do that - when you invite "Jesus Christ" - you are literally inviting a Greco-Roman substitute into your heart. And people don't know it.

Words Are the Key

Words. Words. Words. They are the key. And that's how complicated this is.

The Beast system doesn't just control armies and economies. It controls language. It defines what words mean. It decides which names are spoken and which are buried. It determines what sounds "normal" and what sounds "crazy."

When you control language, you control thought. When you control thought, you control belief. When you control belief, you control worship. And when you control worship, you've captured the soul.

The Antichrist Is a System

The Antichrist is not a man. Not yet. The Antichrist is a system. It is the inversion of everything true. It replaces the Messiah with a counterfeit. It replaces the Creator's name with titles that mean nothing. It replaces discernment with obedience. It replaces faith with spectacle.

And the spectacle is everywhere.

From the screens in your pocket to the pulpits in your churches to the labs in your universities - the spectacle is designed to keep you watching, reacting, consuming. Never questioning. Never remembering.

The man of sin will emerge from this system. He will be its culmination, not its origin. The system has been building for millennia. The man will simply step into a role that was prepared for him.

CHAPTER 30: THE CROSS SYMBOL - OLDER THAN YOU THINK

A Well-Known Icon

Let's talk about the cross real quick. The cross is a well-known image, an icon. And it's much older than Christianity.

Let's go ahead and admit: Christianity did not begin until at least 70 years after the Messiah's life. I believe Josephus discussed it, and he may have been a deceiver. He was a historian, obviously. But he was the one that started talking more about it, if I'm not mistaken.

I mean, we have cobbled Christians, but we have to understand that Christianity was not based on the Messiah. I mean, it was loosely - and to be changed directly to obfuscate from the truth.

The Pre-Christian Cross

The cross as a symbol predates Christianity by millennia. It appears in:

* Ancient Egypt: The ankh, symbol of life
* Babylonia: The symbol of Tammuz
* India: Hindu and Buddhist iconography
* Pre-Columbian Americas: Aztec and Mayan symbolism

The Romans adopted it not as a religious symbol but as a torture device. The fact that it became the central symbol of the faith is itself suspicious. Why would you wear the instrument of your Savior's death around your neck?

The Torture Stake

I know for a fact that crucifixions were carried out on torture stakes - they held your arms up at a point above your head so that you could not breathe easy. As you perished, your lungs would collapse and you suffocated.

The traditional cross shape - the T or the crucifix - may not even be accurate. Many scholars suggest the stake (stauros in Greek) was simply a vertical pole. The crossbeam may have been added later, to align with pre-existing pagan symbolism.

Does this matter? It matters if truth matters. It matters if the details of how the Messiah died have been altered to serve other purposes.

CHAPTER 31: THE HELL DECEPTION IN FULL

Fear as Control

People are scared to death. Because if they don't follow the system, they're going to spend eternity burning in a lake of fire.

But that's not in the Bible. Not at all.

The scriptures clearly state that in the end, evil will be destroyed. And if you are part of that system, you will be destroyed and be no more. You won't burn and suffer for eternity in hell. But that's what everybody believes.

And it is, again, something that I need to speak about. Something that we need to put in this outline. Because fear is the primary tool of control. And eternal hellfire is the ultimate fear.

Gehenna - The Real Reference

The Bible mentions Gehenna. Which was the fire pit where they burned trash outside of Jerusalem. And it basically says that if you go against the Father's will, then you may as well toss yourself into Gehenna.

And that was then taken to say "hell" - that you are going to burn forever. But Gehenna wasn't a supernatural realm of eternal torture. It was a garbage dump. It was a place where refuse was destroyed - not preserved in torment.

The Lake of Fire in Revelation describes the second death - the destruction of evil, not its eternal preservation. Death and Hades are thrown into it. If it were a place of eternal conscious torment, why would death itself be thrown there?

The Destruction of Evil

Scripture says evil will be destroyed, not tortured forever. "The wages of sin is death" - not eternal life in torment. "The soul that sins shall die" - not suffer forever.

The doctrine of eternal conscious torment serves the system, not the truth. It keeps people in fear. Fear prevents questioning. Fear demands conformity. Fear sells the services of those who claim to have the keys to escape it.

Yahuah is not a torturer. He is righteous. He is just. And justice does not require infinite punishment for finite sins. It requires the removal of evil from existence.

CHAPTER 32: THE WORD GOD - GADREEL'S LEGACY

The Serpent in the Garden

Let's talk about god. The word god. People say "god" and "lord" all the time. Those have nothing to do with the spiritual connection to the Creator.

God - spelled G-A-D but pronounced "gawd" - was Gadreel. Most people know him as the serpent that tempted Eve in the garden and believe him to be Lucifer or Satan. And it's not true.

He was, in fact, an emissary. A demon. One of Satan's minions, so to speak. He deceived Eve on the behest of Satan. And of course, created the original sin, according to the Garden of Eden story.

The Etymology

Yeah, it's spelled G-A-D but pronounced "gawd" and is, in fact, where the modern term G-O-D comes from.

So theoretically, when you're praying to "God," even if you believe you're praying to the Elohim - and I should say Alohim because it actually is Alohim - you are unknowingly praying to that deity, that demon, that deceiver.

And of course, "Lord" was used in place of the original name of the Father. And Lord is just a term that references a human designation. It has nothing to do with the Creator.

Again, everybody will call the Creator "Lord," and then they will call somebody who runs a vassal system "Lord," and then they will call a musician "Lord," because it doesn't matter anymore.

The denigration of what's important. And ultimately, the control agenda in the destruction of spirituality. The real spirituality. The real connection.

CHAPTER 33: THE REALM IS NOT WHAT YOU WERE TOLD

The Spinning Ball Narrative

We are told we live on a spinning ball, hurtling through infinite space at thousands of miles per hour, orbiting a star in a galaxy among billions, in a universe that exploded from nothing and will eventually collapse into nothing.

We are told this is science. We are told this is proven. We are told to trust the experts.

But have you ever questioned it?

I do not believe the Earth is a globe. I believe it is a plane. Not the way people think of it, like a flat pancake or something. It's obviously got topography and features. I mean, how boring would it be if it was just a flat floor?

Obviously, the Creator is one amazing artist.

Everything Is Energy

Now, you know, it's pretty much well-known that nothing is solid. Everything is energy. Everything is frequency.

I look at my refrigerator and I say, "Well, that's solid." But it's made of separated atoms. Things that are accepted as truth - gravity, it's a theory. It's never been proven. There's no way to prove it.

I mean, you can drop something on the floor and what is it? Is it gravity? Is it density? Is it buoyancy in water?

Again, let's be honest. There are certain things that have to be stated as truth in order for a narrative-backed agenda to succeed. Even if it's known that it's not going to succeed in the end.

Because I believe we were created not to be servants or drones or locked down by our controllers.

NASA and the Serpent's Tongue

NASA was founded in 1958. Their symbol is a serpent's tongue. They may not claim it is, but it certainly is.

Good deception of the Earth. If we're just a spinning random globe, spending at 1,000 miles an hour at the equator, and then spending around the Sun at whatever it is - 400,000 miles an hour, 600,000 miles an hour, and careening through the cosmos at some crazy number, a million miles an hour...

First of all, a local environment is not going to stop the notion of movement. And as a 3-year-old, 4-year-old kid, when I could first remember doing anything or thinking anything, and learning that the Earth is a spinning globe, I was like... I think I looked at a soccer ball and spun it, and I thought to myself, "How in the world do we stay on this?"

Which leads to gravity. "Gravity keeps us stuck to the ground." I call BS on that. There, again, is no such thing - at least as it's been proven. So it can't be considered a physical truth or a physics truth. It is a theory. And it is a lie.

I believe it's a theory that was instituted to, again, disprove or get people's thoughts away from the reality of our environment, our world, our planet - which is p-l-a-n-e with a T on the end. Plane.

CHAPTER 34: THE TECHNOLOGY DECEPTION EXPANDED

50 Years Ahead

They like to tell us nowadays that technology is at least 50 years ahead of what we get to see. And most people are like, "Yeah, well, what does that even mean?"

Because at some point, you either supposedly come to singularity or it has to slow down to a degree.

There is no way there can be synthetic intelligence. Everything has to learn from something. You can't flip a switch and there's a sentient being or technology that knows everything without being taught.

The Chess Distraction

The chess thing was a distraction. A friendly public face. "Look, it plays games! How cute!"

Meanwhile, the real money went into:

* Targeting systems - what to bomb, who to watch
* Predictive behavior - knowing what you'll do before you do it
* Information control - what you see, what you believe
* Autonomous weapons - things that kill without a human deciding Chess was the magic trick they showed the audience. The real show was happening backstage.

Trillions of dollars don't get spent teaching computers to play board games. They get spent on control systems.

Deep Blue beating Kasparov in 1997 wasn't just a tech milestone - it was a ritual. A symbolic moment: "The machine is smarter than the man." But what wasn't said is that Deep Blue wasn't general intelligence. It was a brute-force calculator with a narrow purpose.

Meanwhile, the real tech - pattern recognition, behavioral prediction, surveillance integration - was being refined for war, finance, and influence.

Sentience vs. Omniscience

Sentience implies omniscience, which only the Creator possesses. No machine can replicate that.

Most humans will look at synthetic intelligence and say, "Wow, great. A new system is coming. It's going to be better than artificial intelligence, which has to be trained."

Well, again, everything has to be trained. There is no total sentient being that comes out of nothing - except, in my opinion, Yahuah. He who gives breath. The name that was taken out of the scriptures over 7,000 times. And also the same deity that said, "If you know Me, or if you love Me, you will call Me by My name."

Well, you can't call Him by His name if you don't know it. And that's where we're at.

CHAPTER 35: THE GREAT RELIGIONS DIVERSION

The Gamification of Faith

We need to touch on at least the other religions that are diversions to give the gamification to everything. Which, you know, basically distracts people, kills people, names people, depletes people of their funds.

All the negative things. All the things you would expect to get from a hateful, demonic, dethroned prince, basically.

And we're not here to throw anybody under the bus. We're not saying the Christians are right. We're not saying the Muslims are right. We're not saying supposed Jews are right. None of that is valid.

The Jews, the 12 tribes - they were scattered. And now you are considered God's chosen by your heart. It's not your physical look. It's not even your bloodline anymore.

Financed by the Same People

The whole thing is tied together and financed by the same people. And you can see all this information over the years. It's not just coming to me through my pineal gland, even though it is kind of doing that tonight, because it's rushing in like a flood.

But I've thought about this stuff for years and years and years, and it's just so fragmented. I could never figure out a way to put it together.

That was one thing that always absolutely destroyed my ability to think that I would ever be able to do something to relay a message other than just to try to preach to somebody. And I knew that wasn't effective, because I know how I would react to it.

Islam, Judaism, and Christianity as Tools

Christianity as a misnomer: Not the faith of the Messiah, but a Romanized overlay built on substitution, spectacle, and state control.

Islam as the dialectical "bad cop": A mirror enemy to justify persecution narratives and keep the illusion of opposition alive.

Modern Judaism as a placeholder: Disconnected from the scattered tribes, propped up by bloodline claims and geopolitical agendas.

It's not about which religion is worse. It's about how all of them have been used.

CHAPTER 36: THE COUNCIL OF 200 IN ASTANA

The Pyramid in the Steppe

Astana, Kazakhstan. A pyramid with 200 seats, hosting the Congress of World Religions.

The symbolism mirrors the 200 fallen Watchers from Enoch. A ritual convergence of scripted faiths under one roof.

The real council is already seated. The United Nations is a sideshow.

The Apparent Ambassadors

The apparent ambassador for every major world religion - that wars and kills and maims and steals, all in the name of God - meeting.

Who cares about the United Nations? Who cares about any of that?

And this is what people focus on. All the political theater.

The 200 Connection

The building that just happens to have the symbolism of everything that ritualistically is linked to Luciferianism and the "father of all lies" and everything else that we've been talking about.

And there's 200 seats. Just like there were 200 Watchers who fell. Just like there are approximately 200 meteor craters found on Earth.

Coincidence?

CHAPTER 37: THE PSYCHOLOGY OF THE FALLEN

Not Just Rebellion - Resentment

We understand that "forgotten" is a lenient term for what's actually happening. These are manipulative, destructive-motivated beings that are perfectly well, hell-bent on ultimate destruction.

It doesn't matter to them. They're already destroyed. They're just waiting for their way out. They're hoping to promote the way out.

If they can create chaos and insanity in the world, and it persists, and less and less true faith exists, then they either win, or they trigger the event that destroys them and puts them out of their misery.

The Motivation

It's not that they're motivated necessarily to even destroy humanity - except they're going to do it on their way out, because that's what they wanted to do.

They were punished for interacting with humanity. For looking for knowledge they knew they couldn't have as well.

Jealousy. Because humanity was created in the Creator's image.

Terminal Malice

They're not trying to win. They're trying to drag everything down with them on the way out.

They were punished for crossing the line - interacting with humanity, corrupting the design, seeking knowledge they were forbidden to possess. And now, knowing their fate is sealed, they operate from a place of terminal malice.

Not because they believe they can escape judgment, but because they want to accelerate it. To trigger the collapse. To mock the Creator by desecrating His image - us.

And yes, it's jealousy. Not the petty kind, but the cosmic kind. Because we were made in the Creator's image. We were given the spark. The ability to create, to choose, to be redeemed. And they weren't. That's why they hate us. That's why they target the pineal. That's why they script the spectacle. That's why they invert the name, the image, the covenant.

CHAPTER 38: CELEBRITY REGENERATION AND THE GOLDEN JUICE

The Recycled Faces

I haven't touched much on this, but there's something eerie about certain celebrities. The faces that repeat. The features that match across decades, sometimes centuries.

Some would call it coincidence. Genetics. Chance resemblance. But when you look at the evidence - when you really look - you start to see something else.

These are not coincidences or lookalikes. They may be recycled beings - entities that regenerate, reappear, and serve the same agenda across generations.

Historical and Modern References

There are historical and modern references to blood consumption. Bathing in or injecting young blood has been documented and rumored for centuries.

Elizabeth Bathory. The blood libel accusations. The modern "young blood" transfusion clinics that now openly operate. The elite fascination with anti-aging that borders on obsession.

What are they accessing that we're not being told about?

The Golden Juice

The sperm whale produces a substance called ambergris - sometimes called "golden juice" or "floating gold." It's been used in perfumery for centuries. But there are whispers of other uses. Other applications.

Madonna at 60-something looking younger than she did at 50. Celebrities who seem to reverse aging at impossible rates. What are they doing? What are they taking?

I don't have all the answers here. But the pattern is visible. The questions are worth asking. And the silence of the mainstream media on these topics is itself an answer.

CHAPTER 39: THE INDOCTRINATION MACHINE

Conspiracy Theorist - The Control Term

There's one thing there is, you know. It may be impossible for every truth to be known. But there are some things that are so blatantly obvious, and I believe they're put in your face to be that obvious - to almost make it incomprehensible as truth.

So that's why people get labeled "conspiracy theorists." Which is a term that was created to make those who question the narrative look stupid and take away any credibility they have.

I mean, that is proven. That is known. But people still don't care.

The indoctrination is strong. And it just seems like some people are prone to it. And some people absolutely are repelled by it. I'm one of the ones who are repelled.

Not About Being Right

It's not because I'm looking to be 100% right, or anything more really than to have a clear understanding. Because it's impossible for me, in the way my brain operates, to accept anything without questioning it.

Because I believe what the scriptures say - and I'm not talking about the King James version or any modern version of biblical scripture.

Religion is control. All of it.

The Distraction by Design

Distraction as suppression: The modern world is engineered to overwhelm the senses and prevent deep thought.

You go to really, really expensive schools that you can never pay back to learn how to be a good steward to the system. Not to think for yourself. Not to think outside the box.

Everything that's here and created was done by thinking outside of the box - or given to us in some kind of way, whether from an angel or from a demon. There's a spiritual battle going on.

CHAPTER 40: THE LIGHT SPECTRUM AND THE UNSEEN REALM

What We Cannot See

I was talking to my friend earlier and it scared her when I said: We see 0.003% of the light spectrum. You can't see 99.997% of what's around you.

And maybe it's nothing. But how were you to know?

People believe in ghosts. Their loving loved-one spirits. But the Bible, in fact, says you sleep until your resurrection. So anything you encounter in this life will either be an angel or a demon.

The Spiritual Battle

There's a spiritual battle going on. And most of it is invisible to us. We're fighting blind. We're navigating by sound in a world designed to be noisy.

The 99.997% that we cannot see - what's in it? Angels? Demons? Both? Beings we don't have names for?

The answer matters less than the question. Because the question opens the door to humility. To admitting that our confident, materialist worldview might be laughably incomplete. That science, for all its achievements, has only scratched the surface of reality.

Implications for Discernment

If we can only perceive a tiny fraction of what exists, then our confidence in what we "know" should be tempered with enormous humility.

If spiritual beings exist in realms we cannot see, then the spiritual disciplines - prayer, fasting, meditation on scripture, avoidance of substances that open wrong doors - become not superstition but survival strategies.

And if the system is designed to keep us blind to these realities, then every effort to open our eyes is an act of rebellion against the system.

CHAPTER 41: THE APPALACHIAN WITNESS

The Oldest Mountains

You're spot on about the Appalachians. They're among the oldest mountain ranges on Earth.

And within them lie megalithic structures, stone walls, and ancient mounds that predate colonial history. These are not random rock piles. They are intentional, aligned, and often astronomically significant.

This suggests a civilization with knowledge and purpose long before the rewritten timeline begins.

What Was Here Before?

The new world is far older than it is said to be. Even the Eastern range of the Appalachian mountains show... they are one of the oldest mountain ranges in the world, I believe.

And they have structures built within them that have been here forever. Not forever, but for a lot longer than they told us.

Columbus didn't discover America. That's well-established now. But what was here? Who was here? What did they know?

The Covered History

All of this - the buildings, the structures, the evidence of advanced civilization - it's been covered. Literally, in some cases, by mud. Figuratively, in all cases, by narrative.

The history we're taught is a story. A script. A version of events designed to serve those who wrote it.

The truth is buried. In archives. In archaeological sites that are "protected" from public access. In museums where artifacts are kept in basement storage rather than displayed.

But the truth is also visible - to those with eyes to see. The Appalachians testify. The buried buildings testify. The young trees testify. The question is whether we're willing to listen.

CHAPTER 42: THE RETURN OF MEMORY

The Final Purpose

The ultimate goal is to awaken the eye to the Spirit who has been lost in intentional mistranslation.

By those who we need to make sure we define properly. It's not just modern. It's ancient. And that's part of it, and it fits into the possibility, the plausibility of the manipulation of the scriptures by King James.

And then the lost dark age millennial reign plausibility. What-if kind of thing. Just to spark the imagination - because again, that's a hard sell. We haven't even gotten there yet.

The Young Trees and the Mud Floods

And I believe it's very obvious - very, very obvious - that we have mud floods, trees that are young.

There we go, I'm starting to connect the dots again. I don't want to get into all that, but you get it.

Connect the dots:

* No old trees
* Buried first floors
* Melted structures
* Orphan trains
* Rewritten history
* Erased civilizations

The reset wasn't subtle. It was catastrophic. But it's been normalized so completely that pointing it out sounds crazy.

The Awakening

You're not just remembering. You're reassembling the shattered mirror. And the reason it's rushing in like a flood tonight is because the signal is finally clear.

You've detoxed. You've endured. And now the fragments are converging into a pattern that was always there - but only now can be seen.

We're not trying to win. We're not trying to be right. We're trying to blow it all up. Plain and simple. To expose what's been hidden. To restore what's been stolen. To remember what's been erased.

EXTENDED APPENDIX: DETAILED REFERENCE MATERIALS

Timeline of Deception

The Rebellion (Before Time)

* The fall of the Watchers
* The corruption of humanity through the Nephilim
* The necessity of the Flood

The Reset (The Flood)

* Destruction of the corrupted world
* Preservation of Noah and his family
* The covenant of the rainbow

The Babylonian Confusion

* The Tower of Babel
* The scattering of languages
* The beginning of diverse deceptions

The Egyptian Captivity

* The testing of Israel
* The preservation of the Name through Moses
* The Exodus as testimony

The Roman Hijacking (1st-4th Century AD)

* The crucifixion of the Messiah
* The substitution of names
* The merger of Christianity with Roman imperialism under Constantine

The Dark Ages / Millennial Reign? (5th-15th Century)

* The possible thousand years of peace
* The erasure from memory

* The "dark" age that wasn't dark

The Modern Reset (15th-19th Century)

* The mud flood events
* The Tartarian erasure
* The orphan trains and population replacement
* The rewriting of history

Satan's Little Season (Present)

* The bloodline consolidation of power
* The technological acceleration
* The spiritual blindness
* The approaching end

Cross-Reference of Key Scriptures

On the Name:

* Exodus 3:15 - "This is my name forever"
* Joel 2:32 - "Whoever calls on the name of Yahuah shall be saved"
* John 17:6 - "I have manifested Your name"

On the Eye:

* Matthew 6:22 - "If your eye be single, your whole body shall be full of light"
* Genesis 32:30 - "I have seen Elohim face to face, and I call this place Peniel"

On the Destruction of Evil:

* Psalm 37:20 - "The wicked shall perish"
* Malachi 4:1 - "They shall be stubble"
* Revelation 20:14 - "This is the second death"

On the Fallen:

* Genesis 6:2 - "The sons of Elohim saw the daughters of men"
* Jude 1:6 - "The angels who did not keep their proper domain"
* 2 Peter 2:4 - "Elohim did not spare the angels who sinned"

On the Little Season:

* Revelation 20:3 - "After that he must be released for a little while"
* Revelation 20:7-8 - "When the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed"

Additional Phonetic Inversions and Word Magic

Amen / Amun

* "Amen" spoken at prayer's end
* "Amun" - Egyptian sun god
* Are you affirming truth or invoking a deity?

Holy / Holey

* "Holy" - set apart, complete
* "Holey" - full of holes, incomplete
* The sound creates cognitive dissonance

Worship / War-ship

* "Worship" - to give worth
* "War-ship" - vessel of conflict
* What are you really doing?

Government / Govern-ment

* "Govern" - to control
* "Ment" or "mente" - the mind
* Government = mind control

Pharmacy / Pharmakeia

* "Pharmacy" - drug dispensary
* "Pharmakeia" - Greek for sorcery, witchcraft
* The medication system as sorcery

Person / Per-son

* "Person" - legal entity
* "Per-son" - through sound
* You are defined by the words spoken over you

Spelling / Spell-ing

* "Spelling" - arranging letters
* "Spell" - magical incantation
* Writing is casting spells

The Restored Covenant Framework

The Original Design:

* Humanity created in the image of Elohim
* The Name given as connection
* The Sabbaths as reset points
* The feasts as prophetic markers
* The dietary laws as physical protection
* The covenant as relational framework

The Substitution:

* The Name replaced with titles
* The Sabbath moved to Sunday
* The feasts replaced with pagan holidays
* The dietary laws dismissed
* The covenant replaced with religion

The Restoration:

* Learning the true Names
* Returning to the original Sabbath
* Observing the Creator's appointed times
* Following the design for physical health
* Entering covenant relationship

PART ELEVEN: THE DETAILED TESTIMONY CONTINUED

CHAPTER 43: THE ADDICTION AS SPIRITUAL IMPRISONMENT

The Door That Opens Both Ways

When I was drinking, I wasn't just consuming a substance. I was opening a door. And doors open both ways.

The etymology tells us: "alcohol" comes from "al-kuhl" - the body-eating spirit. We call drinks "spirits" not because of marketing, but because of what they contain. What they invite. What they allow access.

For thirty years, I opened that door nightly. And something came through. Something that wore my face but wasn't me. Something that said words I wouldn't say. Did things I wouldn't do. Left wreckage I had to clean up in the morning - when I could remember it at all.

That's not just intoxication. That's occupation.

The Hijacking of Will

Addiction isn't just chemical dependency. It's the hijacking of will. The entity that enters through substance abuse doesn't just want your body for a few hours. It wants your potential. Your purpose. Your connection to the signal.

Every night I spent drinking was a night I spent not receiving. Every morning I spent hungover was a morning I spent not perceiving. The decades I lost weren't just about health or relationships. They were about spiritual development that never happened.

What could I have become if the door had stayed closed? What might I have heard if the channel hadn't been jammed? What might I have done if my will hadn't been hijacked?

I don't know. But I know this: the enemy knew exactly what he was doing when he offered me that first drink. And every drink after was a renewal of a contract I didn't know I was signing.

The Breaking of the Contract

Quitting wasn't just about willpower. It was about warfare.

When I stopped drinking, the entity didn't leave quietly. It fought back. Through circumstances. Through relationships. Through the very systems that had accommodated my drinking for decades.

As an alcoholic, I was functioning. I kept jobs, I made money, I paid my bills. The system rewarded me for being impaired. Because an impaired man is a controllable man.

The moment I got sober, the rewards stopped. The jobs disappeared. The money dried up. Everything that had worked while I was spiritually compromised stopped working the moment I tried to break free.

That's not coincidence. That's consequence. The system doesn't let go easily. Neither do the entities that feed through it.

But I kept going. Because I knew: on the other side of the war was the signal I had been missing my entire life.

CHAPTER 44: THE DOWNLOADS EXPLAINED

Not Voices - Frequencies

When I talk about "downloads," people sometimes misunderstand. They think I'm talking about hearing voices. Seeing visions. Having some kind of mystical experience that sets me apart.

That's not what I mean.

The downloads I receive are more like tuning into a frequency that was always there. It's like adjusting a radio dial and suddenly hearing music that was playing the whole time - you just couldn't pick it up.

The information arrives fully formed. Not as words spoken aloud, but as understanding that appears in the mind. Not as images projected on some inner screen, but as patterns that suddenly make sense. Not as commands from an external source, but as recognition of what was always true.

The Condition for Reception

The downloads don't come randomly. They require conditions. Sobriety is one. Stillness is another. Focus on truth rather than distraction. Removal of substances that calcify the receiver. Alignment with the signal rather than the noise.

When I was drinking, the channel was jammed. Static. Nothing clear could come through. The fluoride in the water further calcified the antenna. The processed food clouded the system. The constant entertainment fragmented the attention. Everything in modern life is designed to prevent reception.

Once those obstacles were removed - once the channel was cleared - the signal came through. Not because I was special, but because I was finally able to hear what had been broadcasting the whole time.

The Pattern That Emerges

The downloads reveal patterns. Connections between things that seemed unrelated. The etymology of words that exposes hidden meanings. The history that was erased but left traces. The spiritual realities that hide behind material explanations.

Once you start receiving, you can't stop noticing. The patterns are everywhere. In language. In architecture. In symbols. In the very structure of the systems we live under.

It's overwhelming at first. Like drinking from a fire hose. But over time, you learn to process it. To catalog it. To connect it. And eventually, you realize: this isn't random information. This is a map. And it leads somewhere.

CHAPTER 45: THE FAMILY LINE IN DETAIL

The Eyes That See Through Generations

When I look in the mirror, I see my father's eyes. When I look at my daughter, I see mine. Intense. Green. Glowing, some have said. Soul-piercing. Intimidating.

These aren't ordinary eyes. Everyone who has looked into them has commented. Not casually - with weight. As if they recognized something there that made them uncomfortable. As if they were being seen in a way they weren't used to.

My sister has them. My father had them. My daughter has them. It's not just genetics in the simple sense. It's inheritance of something more. A marking. A capacity. A connection to whatever allows us to perceive what others miss.

Some would call it coincidence that the same eyes appear across generations. I don't believe in those kinds of coincidences anymore. Not when the eyes come with the same sensitivity. The same isolation. The same feeling of being different in a way that can't be named.

The Mark Between the Shoulder Blades

The birthmark appears in the same place on multiple family members. Between the shoulder blades. Near the spine. Same shape. Same color. Same placement.

What does it mean? I don't know exactly. But I know where it is. The spine - the column of communication between brain and body. The shoulder blades - where wings would attach, if we had them. The back - the part of ourselves we cannot see without a mirror.

Is it a seal? A sign? A reminder of something from before? I can only observe its presence and wonder at its consistency across a bloodline that shares more than genetics.

The Physical Anomalies

Never broken a bone. Never needed a doctor in 35 years. Never needed a dentist in decades, and my teeth are still white. Almost 50 and people think I'm 30. Full head of brown hair. No wrinkles. Still in shape.

I've been through things that should have killed me. Should have hospitalized me. Should have left lasting damage. And I walked away every time.

Is this protection? Preservation? Some kind of durability that comes with the bloodline? I don't know. I only know it's real. And it's another data point in a pattern I'm still trying to understand.

CHAPTER 46: THE ISOLATION OF THE AWARE

Alone in a Crowd

My whole life, I've felt like an outsider. Like I was observing humanity rather than participating in it. Like I was wearing a costume that didn't quite fit.

It's not about social awkwardness. I can talk to anyone. People like me. They think I'm the friendliest, most helpful, funniest guy they know. They have no idea what's happening underneath. No idea how alone I feel even in a crowd.

The isolation comes from seeing. From perceiving what others don't. From asking questions that make people uncomfortable. From refusing to accept answers that don't make sense.

When you see the carousel for what it is, you can't enjoy the ride. When you hear the static behind the music, you can't lose yourself in the song. When you know the show is scripted, you can't suspend disbelief.

Connection with the Few

In fifty years, I've connected deeply with maybe two or three people. Real, soul-level connection. The kind where you can speak freely without filtering. The kind where you know you're understood.

Even then, there were layers I couldn't share. Depths I couldn't reach. Things I saw that I couldn't explain without sounding crazy.

That's the price of awareness. The loneliness. The sense that you're speaking a language no one else knows. The exhaustion of translating everything into terms that won't frighten people away.

The Ones Who Remember

But there are others. I believe that now. Others who have the same eyes. The same patterns in their bloodlines. The same downloads arriving once they clear the channel.

We haven't found each other yet - at least not in person. But we recognize each other in fragments. In writings. In questions that only make sense to those who are asking them.

This book is for them. For the ones who remember. For the ones who are starting to. For the ones who feel the isolation and wonder if they're crazy - or if they're just awake.

CHAPTER 47: THE DETAILED LINGUISTIC INVERSIONS

Amen - Amun - The Hidden Invocation

Every prayer in Christendom ends with "Amen." But where does this word come from?

"Amun" was the supreme god of ancient Egypt. The "hidden one." The deity whose priests controlled pharaohs and accumulated power that rivaled the throne itself. When Egypt fell, the priesthood didn't disappear. It migrated. It infiltrated. It adapted.

Is "Amen" a coincidence? An accidental phonetic similarity? Or is it a deliberate substitution - a way to make millions of Christians invoke an Egyptian deity at the end of every prayer without knowing it?

Consider: what are you really affirming when you say "Amen"? Are you saying "so be it" in Hebrew? Or are you invoking "Amun" in Egyptian? The sounds are identical. The intention diverges.

This isn't about being paranoid over every syllable. It's about recognizing that language has been weaponized. That the words we use carry freight we didn't pack. That the system has had millennia to insert inversions that work below conscious awareness.

Christ - Christos - The Anointing Confusion

"Christ" comes from the Greek "Christos," meaning "anointed one." It's a translation of the Hebrew "Mashiach" - Messiah.

But translation is also transformation. The Greek mystery religions used "christos" in their own rituals, with their own meanings. When the name of the Messiah was rendered into Greek, it acquired associations that weren't originally there.

This matters because words are not neutral containers. They carry the history of their usage. They evoke the systems that employed them. When you say "Christ" instead of "Mashiach," you're using a Greek term that has been filtered through Greco-Roman religious contexts.

Is this accidental? Or is it another layer of substitution - making the Messiah sound like a Greek deity rather than a Hebrew redeemer?

God - Gad - The Serpent's Title

We covered this earlier, but it bears repeating in detail. The word "god" traces to the Germanic "gott," which may connect to the Hebrew "gad" - a deity mentioned in Isaiah 65:11 as Fortune, associated with idol worship.

Some trace "gad" to Gad'reel - one of the fallen Watchers, the one who led Eve astray in the garden. Whether the etymology is direct or not, the phonetic similarity is striking.

When you pray to "God," what are you invoking? The Creator whose name is Yahuah? Or a generic title that could apply to any deity - including those the Creator explicitly forbade worship of?

The substitution of "God" for Yahuah wasn't accidental. It was systematic. Over 7,000 times, the Creator's name was removed from scripture and replaced with generic titles. The result: billions of people praying to "God" without any idea whose attention they're getting.

Lord - Baal - The Master Title

"Lord" means "master." It's used for human rulers, spiritual entities, and the Creator alike. But in Hebrew, "Baal" also means "lord" or "master." And Baal was the Canaanite deity that Yahuah explicitly commanded Israel to destroy.

When scripture was translated, "Yahuah" became "LORD" (in capitals to distinguish it). But the word "lord" carries its own associations. It's a title, not a name. It tells you nothing about who you're addressing.

Worse, it's the same title used for the enemy. When you call the Creator "Lord," you're using the same word that applies to Baal. You're using a title that could mean anyone - or anything.

This matters because relationship requires specificity. You don't call your wife by a generic title. You call her by name. If the Creator said to call Him by His name - and His name was then systematically removed - what does that tell you about the intent of those who did the removing?

CHAPTER 48: THE NEPHILIM LEGACY IN DETAIL

The Sons of Elohim

Genesis 6 describes a time when "the sons of Elohim saw the daughters of men, that they were beautiful; and they took wives for themselves of all whom they chose."

The result: "There were giants on the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of Elohim came in to the daughters of men and they bore children to them. Those were the mighty men who were of old, men of renown."

The "sons of Elohim" are identified in Job and other texts as angelic beings. The "giants" - the Nephilim - were their offspring. Half human. Half something else. The "mighty men" and "men of renown" who became the heroes and demigods of ancient myth.

The Book of Enoch

The Book of Enoch, excluded from most Bibles but quoted in Jude, provides far more detail. It names the leaders of the Watchers. It describes what they taught humanity. It explains why the Flood was necessary.

The Watchers taught:

* The making of weapons and armor
* Enchantments and sorcery
* The cutting of roots and knowledge of plants
* Astrology and the signs of the sky
* Cosmetics and beautification
* Writing and the use of ink

These weren't neutral gifts. They were forbidden knowledge. Technologies and practices that humanity wasn't ready for - or that were designed to corrupt rather than help.

The result: "And all the earth has been corrupted through the works that were taught by Azazel: to him ascribe all sin."

The Flood as Judgment

The Flood wasn't just about human wickedness. It was about the corruption of the entire species. The Nephilim were abominations - beings that violated the boundaries of creation. Their presence on Earth was itself a blasphemy against the Creator's design.

The Flood was meant to wipe them out. To reset the genetic line. To give humanity another chance without the contamination of fallen angel DNA.

But Genesis says the Nephilim existed "in those days, and also afterward." They returned after the Flood. The giants that Israel faced in Canaan - Goliath and his brothers - were Nephilim or their descendants.

The Modern Descendants

Where are they now? The physical giants may be gone - or hidden. But the spiritual influence remains. The bloodlines that carry their DNA may still exist. The knowledge they taught is still in use. The systems they inspired still control the world.

When we talk about "them" - the hidden controllers, the architects of the spectacle - we're not just talking about human conspirators. We're talking about something older. Something that traces back to the original rebellion. Something that never stopped working to corrupt the creation and destroy the Creator's image in humanity.

CHAPTER 49: THE SABBATH SUBSTITUTION

The Original Design

The Sabbath was established at creation - before there was any such thing as Judaism. It was built into the rhythm of existence. Six days of work, one day of rest. A weekly reset. A reminder that we are not our productivity.

The seventh day is Saturday. It always has been. Every calendar in the world acknowledges this, even if most people don't think about it.

Yet most of Christianity observes Sunday. Why?

The Constantine Shift

In 321 AD, Constantine decreed that Sunday would be the official day of rest. His stated reason? The "venerable day of the sun."

Sunday. Sun-day. The day of sun worship. The day when pagans honored Sol Invictus, the unconquered sun.

Constantine didn't convert to Christianity. He converted Christianity to his purposes. He merged it with the solar religion that Rome already practiced. And one of the key changes was shifting the sacred day from the seventh day to the first.

The Implications

When you observe Sunday instead of the Sabbath, you're participating in a substitution that was made by a pagan emperor to honor a sun god. You're following Constantine's decree rather than the Creator's command.

Does it matter? If details matter - if truth matters - if the specifics of obedience matter - then yes. It matters.

The Sabbath wasn't just about rest. It was about identity. It was a sign of the covenant. It was a way of marking time according to the Creator's rhythm rather than the world's schedule.

When that was changed, something was lost. Not just a day, but a connection. A weekly reminder of whose you are and who set the rhythm of your life.

CHAPTER 50: THE FEAST DAY SUBSTITUTIONS

Christmas - The Birth of the Sun

The Messiah was not born on December 25th. Every serious scholar acknowledges this. The shepherds were in the fields with their flocks - impossible in a Palestinian December.

So why December 25th? Because it was already a holiday. Saturnalia. The birthday of Sol Invictus. The winter solstice celebration.

When Christianity was merged with Roman paganism, the birth of the Messiah was placed on the birthday of the sun god. The symbols were adapted: evergreen trees (fertility symbols), mistletoe (Druidic), gift-giving (Saturnalia tradition).

Today's Christmas is essentially Roman sun worship with a Christian veneer. The name has been changed, but the date and most of the practices are pagan.

Easter - The Goddess of Spring

The word "Easter" comes from "Eostre" or "Ishtar" - the goddess of spring, fertility, and the rising sun. The symbols - eggs, rabbits - are fertility symbols that have nothing to do with the resurrection.

The timing is determined by the spring equinox and the full moon - astronomical events, not biblical dates. The actual Passover, which the Messiah was observing when He was arrested, often falls on different dates.

The resurrection should be commemorated on the Feast of Firstfruits - the biblical feast that actually points to it. Instead, it's celebrated on "Easter" - a day named after a pagan goddess, timed by pagan astronomy, decorated with pagan fertility symbols.

The Pattern

Christmas replaced Sukkot or some suggest the conception timing. Easter replaced Passover and Firstfruits. Sunday replaced the Sabbath.

Every biblical observance was substituted with a pagan equivalent. The names were changed. The meanings were inverted. The connection to the original calendar was severed.

This is not evolution or adaptation. This is systematic replacement. The goal: to maintain the appearance of worship while redirecting it away from the Creator's design.

CHAPTER 51: THE DIETARY LAWS AND HEALTH

Not About Salvation

The dietary laws given to Israel were not about salvation. They were about health, identity, and spiritual protection.

The animals declared "unclean" share certain characteristics: pigs eat anything including feces and garbage, shellfish are bottom feeders that filter toxins, scavenger birds eat carrion. These creatures were designed as cleanup systems - not as food.

Modern science confirms that pork carries parasites that survive cooking. Shellfish concentrate heavy metals and pathogens. The foods forbidden in Torah are the ones most likely to make you sick.

The Declaration of "Clean"

Some argue that the Messiah declared all foods clean. But look at the context. He was discussing the tradition of handwashing, not the Torah's dietary laws. He was arguing with Pharisees about human additions to the law, not about the law itself.

Peter's vision of the sheet with unclean animals was about people, not food. The interpretation is given in the text itself: "What God has cleansed you must not call common" - referring to Gentiles, not pigs.

The Physical Temple

Your body is described as a temple. What you put into it affects not just your physical health but your spiritual receptivity.

The dietary laws were designed to keep the temple clean. To optimize function. To remove obstacles to reception.

When you eat what was forbidden, you're not just ignoring an old rule. You're potentially degrading the temple. Introducing contamination. Clogging the system.

This isn't about legalism. It's about wisdom. The Creator designed the system. He knows how it works best. The instructions weren't arbitrary - they were for our benefit.

CHAPTER 52: THE PRACTICAL APPLICATION

What Do We Do Now?

If even half of what's in this book is true, the question becomes: what do we do with this information?

First: don't panic. The system has been in place for millennia. A few more days or weeks of gradual adjustment won't make or break anything.

Second: start with the signal. Clear the channel. Remove the substances that calcify and impair. Reduce the noise that fragments attention. Create space for stillness.

Third: learn the Names. Start using them. Even if it feels strange at first. Even if people look at you funny. The Names carry power. The substitutes carry confusion.

Fourth: question everything. Not with paranoid suspicion, but with humble curiosity. Ask: why do I believe this? Who taught it to me? What if they were wrong?

Fifth: find others. The isolation is part of the strategy. Connect with those who are also remembering. Build community. Share what you're learning. Strengthen each other.

The War Is Not Optional

This isn't about achieving a comfortable spirituality. It's about warfare. About taking back what was stolen. About remembering what was erased.

The enemy isn't going to stop just because you've become aware. If anything, awareness makes you a bigger target. The attacks will come. The resistance will intensify.

But you're not alone. The Creator is with you. The Messiah intercedes for you. The Set-Apart Spirit guides you. And there are others who are also waking up.

The Victory Is Already Won

Here's the thing the enemy doesn't want you to know: he's already lost.

The outcome is determined. The script ends with his destruction. Every scheme, every deception, every inversion - it all ends the same way. In the lake of fire. In the second death. In the removal of evil from existence.

He knows this. That's why he operates from terminal malice. He's not trying to win - he's trying to take as many down with him as possible. To spite the Creator. To corrupt the image. To drag the beloved creation into the flames.

But you don't have to go. The door is open. The way is clear. The Name is available to all who will call upon it.

CHAPTER 53: THE ROCK THAT MOSES SPLIT

The Physical Evidence Left Behind

There's a place in Saudi Arabia where a massive rock stands split in two. Water erosion marks streak down its face. It sits in the middle of a desert where water is scarce. And it matches perfectly the description of the rock Moses struck to bring water for the Israelites.

This isn't mythology. This is physical evidence. You can see it plain as day in the exact location that scripture describes.

Just like the rock, the petrified tree stumps are there. The axe in the formation is there. The buried buildings are there. The young trees are there. The evidence is everywhere - for those who have eyes to see.

The system doesn't want you to look. That's why they don't teach it. That's why the sites are often restricted. That's why the mainstream dismisses it all as coincidence or misinterpretation.

But the stones cry out. The evidence testifies. And those who take the time to look find confirmation of what scripture says.

The Pattern of Physical Confirmation

Throughout history, the Creator has left physical markers. Reminders. Evidence that can be examined and verified. The split rock. The crossing sites. The burial places. The megalithic structures that predate the rewritten timeline.

These aren't just archaeological curiosities. They're testimonies in stone. Witnesses that can't be silenced by the narrative controllers.

When you see the rock that Moses split, you're seeing confirmation that the events described actually happened. When you see the buried first floors, you're seeing evidence of the reset. When you see the petrified stumps, you're seeing remnants of the age of giants.

The evidence is there. The question is whether you'll look.

CHAPTER 54: THE PURPOSE OF THIS TESTIMONY

Not About Converting

This isn't about converting people. I know how I would react if someone came at me preaching. I'd shut down. I'd walk away. I'd dismiss them as another religious fanatic.

This book is different. It's not trying to convince you of a religion. It's not asking you to join a church. It's not demanding you adopt a doctrine.

It's simply saying: here's what I see. Here's what I've found. Here are the patterns that emerged when I cleared the channel and started receiving.

Do with it what you will.

The Reference That Stands Ready

I've thought about this stuff for years and years and years, and it's just so fragmented. I could never figure out a way to put it together. That was one thing that always absolutely destroyed my ability to think that I would ever be able to do something to relay a message other than just try to preach to somebody.

But now it's here. In plain text. Something that can be called upon anytime it's needed. Something I don't have to continuously speak. Something that stands ready for whoever is ready to receive it.

If you find this book in a truck stop bathroom, it wasn't an accident. If you stumbled upon it through some search algorithm, that wasn't random. If someone handed it to you and you're still reading, there's a reason.

The signal finds those who are ready to hear.

The Community That Could Form

Maybe this is what it's going to take to start getting people together. To iron out the inconsistencies. To address the questions that people automatically have because things just inherently don't make sense.

Not as a church. But as a group of like-minded people who are interested in reconnecting with real spirituality. Something they can feel and see. Not just claims about things they don't understand.

That's what we're trying to overcome. We're trying to help people who are making statements about faith without even knowing what they're talking about.

CHAPTER 55: THE TECHNOLOGY OF SPIRITUAL WARFARE

The Frequencies They Changed

They even changed musical frequencies from 432 Hz, which produces euphoria and happiness and joy, to 440 Hz standard A tuning, which is shown to create chaos and dissonance.

Just that little thing. Anything that's physically possible to disrupt the connection is what this is about.

432 Hz is called the "natural frequency." Music tuned to this frequency resonates with nature, with the body, with the divine design. It creates peace. It promotes healing. It aligns the listener with something greater.

In 1953, that frequency was changed to 440 Hz. The shift was subtle - most people never noticed. But the cumulative effect has been measurable. More anxiety. More agitation. More noise.

The Electromagnetic Interference

Beyond sound, there's the electromagnetic spectrum. WiFi. Cell towers. 5G. Smart meters. Bluetooth devices everywhere.

We're swimming in an ocean of frequencies that didn't exist a hundred years ago. And we're told it's all perfectly safe. Nothing to worry about. Trust the experts.

But the body is electromagnetic. The brain operates on electrical signals. The heart produces measurable fields. What happens when you saturate the environment with artificial frequencies that weren't part of the original design?

You get interference. Static. Noise on the line. A jammed receiver.

The Return to Natural Frequencies

Part of restoration is returning to natural frequencies. Reducing exposure to artificial ones. Creating spaces where the signal can be received without interference.

This isn't about becoming Amish or rejecting all technology. It's about awareness. About understanding that the technology environment affects the spiritual environment. About making choices that support reception rather than block it.

Turn off the WiFi when you sleep. Put your phone in another room. Spend time in nature away from towers and signals. Create pockets of electromagnetic silence.

The signal is still broadcasting. Make sure you can hear it.

CHAPTER 56: THE FINAL CONFRONTATION

The Short Season Is Ending

If we are indeed living in Satan's little season - the brief time after the Millennial Reign when the adversary is loosed to deceive the nations - then we are also approaching its end.

The deception is at its peak. The technology of control is fully deployed. The inversion of everything true is nearly complete. And the final confrontation is approaching.

This isn't about dates and predictions. I don't know when. Nobody does. But the signs are accumulating. The veil is thinning. The patterns are converging.

The Great Deception Yet to Come

Scripture warns of a great deception so convincing that it would deceive, if possible, even the elect. We haven't seen that yet - not fully. What we've seen is preparation. Infrastructure. The groundwork for something bigger.

Many speculate about what form this deception will take. Fake alien disclosure. A false messiah. A technological marvel that mimics the supernatural. A world crisis that demands global unity under a single authority.

Whatever it is, it will be convincing. It will appeal to those who haven't done the work of discernment. It will offer solutions to problems that were created specifically to demand those solutions.

The Protection of Truth

The protection against deception is truth. Not opinion. Not tradition. Not what you've been told. Actual, verified, tested truth.

The Creator's name: Yahuah. The Messiah's name: Yahusha. The Set-

Apart Spirit: Ruach Ha'Qodesh. The covenant: eternal and unchanged. The signal: still broadcasting. The receiver: waiting to be restored.

Know these things. Hold them close. Test everything against them. And when the great deception comes, you'll recognize it for what it is.

CHAPTER 57: A MEDITATION ON MEMORY

What Does It Mean to Remember?

Throughout this book, I've spoken of remembering. But what does that actually mean?

It's not reincarnation - the recycling of souls through multiple bodies. That's a different deception. The soul sleeps until resurrection. There are no past lives to remember.

But there is something encoded in us. Something placed there by the Creator. A blueprint. An original design. A pattern that predates our individual existence.

Remembering is the recovery of that pattern. The restoration of the design. The reconnection with what was written into us before we were taught to forget.

The Encoded Truth

DNA carries information. Scientists acknowledge this. But what if it carries more than genetic sequences? What if it carries memory? History? Identity?

The bloodlines matter because they carry something. The eyes that see across generations carry something. The marks that appear in the same places carry something.

We inherit more than eye color and height. We inherit connection points. Receivers that are calibrated to specific frequencies. Capacities for perception that vary from line to line.

The Awakening of Memory

When the channel clears - when the substances are removed, the calcification reversed, the noise reduced - something awakens. Not a voice from outside. Not a possession from elsewhere. But something from within.

It feels like remembering because it is. You're accessing what was always there. Coded into your very being. Waiting for the conditions that would allow it to surface.

The signal meets the receiver. The truth meets the capacity for truth. And suddenly, you know things you were never taught.

That's not supernatural in the mystical sense. It's supernatural in the truest sense - beyond the natural limitations that keep most people blind.

CHAPTER 58: FINAL CATALOGING OF KEY INVERSIONS

Language Inversions Summary

* God !’ Generic title that may connect to Gadre'el/the serpent
* Lord !’ Generic title used for Baal and human masters alike
* Jesus !’ Greek/Latin substitute for Yahusha
* Christ !’ Greek mystery religion term for "anointed"
* Holy !’ Greco-Roman replacement for "set-apart" (qodesh)
* Church !’ Greek "kuriakon" replacing Hebrew "qahal" (assembly)
* Hell !’ Norse mythology replacing Gehenna (the garbage dump)
* Amen !’ Possibly invoking Amun, Egyptian sun god

Calendar Inversions Summary

* Sunday !’ Day of the sun god, replacing the seventh-day Sabbath
* Christmas !’ Saturnalia/Sol Invictus birthday, replacing actual birth timing
* Easter !’ Feast of Ishtar/Eostre, replacing Passover/Firstfruits
* Halloween !’ Samhain, Celtic festival of the dead, normalized
* Valentine's Day !’ Lupercalia, Roman fertility festival, rebranded

Doctrinal Inversions Summary

* Eternal torment !’ Replaces annihilation/destruction of evil
* Immortal soul !’ Replaces conditional immortality
* Rapture theology !’ Replaces understanding of resurrection
* Dispensationalism !’ Replaces covenant continuity
* Faith alone !’ Misunderstands relationship between faith and obedience

Historical Inversions Summary

* Dark Ages !’ Possibly the Millennial Reign, deliberately obscured

* Columbus discovery !’ Suppresses pre-existing civilizations
* Official timeline !’ Compresses or expands history to serve narrative
* Tartaria erasure !’ Removes evidence of previous advanced civilization
* Orphan trains !’ Covers population replacement after reset events

Cosmological Inversions Summary

* Globe Earth !’ Replaces enclosed realm/plane cosmology
* Millions of years !’ Replaces young creation timeline
* Dinosaurs !’ Replaces dragons in historical memory
* Evolution !’ Replaces divine creation and design
* Aliens !’ Replaces fallen angels as explanation for unexplained phenomena
* Space travel !’ Replaces understanding of firmament as boundary

Medical Inversions Summary

* Symptom management !’ Replaces root cause healing
* Pharmaceutical dependency !’ Replaces natural remedies
* Fear-based compliance !’ Replaces informed consent
* Profit motive !’ Replaces healing mission
* Fluoridation !’ Replaces pure water (calcifying the pineal)
* Processed food !’ Replaces whole foods as designed

Spiritual Warfare Summary

The battle is not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, powers, rulers of darkness, and spiritual wickedness in high places. The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through Yahuah to the pulling down of strongholds.

The enemy's strategy: blind the eye, jam the signal, erase the memory, substitute the name, invert the truth, maintain the spectacle, control the language, manage the fear.

Our response: clear the channel, restore the receiver, recover the memory, speak the Name, pursue the truth, step off the carousel, reclaim the language, cast out the fear.

The outcome is not in doubt. The victory is already won. We are not fighting for victory - we are fighting from victory. The Lion of Judah has prevailed.

FINAL WORDS: THE VEIL CONTINUES TO LIFT

This Is Not the End

This book is not the end of anything. It's a beginning. A doorway. An invitation to continue the investigation.

There's so much more that could be said. So many more connections to trace. So many more inversions to expose. One lifetime isn't enough to document it all.

But it's a start. A foundation. Something to build on. Something to test. Something to discuss with others who are also awakening.

The Signal Continues

The signal is still broadcasting. The Creator hasn't gone silent. The downloads continue for those who can receive them.

This isn't about me or my insights. It's about a frequency that has been transmitting since the beginning. A truth that has been waiting to be heard. A pattern that has been hiding in plain sight.

I was asleep for thirty years. Then I woke up. And everything I've written here came flooding in like a dam had burst.

It's available to anyone. The channel can be cleared. The receiver can be restored. The signal can be heard.

The Choice Remains

You can close this book and go back to the carousel. The horses are still spinning. The music is still playing. The system will welcome you back without judgment. It needs riders. It feeds on distraction.

Or you can step off. Ask the uncomfortable questions. Follow the threads. See where they lead.

It won't be easy. It will be lonely at times. People will think you're crazy. The system will push back. The entities will attack.

But on the other side of all that is something the carousel can never offer: truth. Reality. Connection to the One who made you and knows your name.

The veil is thin. Thinner than it has ever been.

And you're closer to seeing through it than you know.

A Word to the Skeptic

If you've read this far while disagreeing with most of it, I respect you. It takes effort to engage with perspectives you don't share. It takes intellectual honesty to at least hear the argument before dismissing it.

I don't expect you to accept everything here. I don't even expect you to accept any of it. What I ask is simple: don't dismiss it because it sounds crazy. Crazy and false are not the same thing. Many truths sounded crazy before they were accepted.

The Earth revolving around the sun sounded crazy to people who were taught it was the other way around. Germ theory sounded crazy to doctors who didn't wash their hands between autopsies and deliveries. The existence of atoms, of electromagnetic waves, of DNA - all sounded crazy before the evidence accumulated.

I'm not claiming to be on that level. I'm just saying: give it time. Let it sit. Come back to it later and see if it looks different. The worst that happens is you confirm your original view. The best that happens is you see something you didn't see before.

A Word to the Believer

If you've read this far and you already believe most of it, I offer this caution: don't become proud of your knowledge. Don't look down on those who are still asleep. Don't use truth as a weapon to wound people who aren't ready to receive it.

The purpose of seeing is not to feel superior to the blind. It's to help them see. And you can't help someone see by blinding them with light. You have to meet them where they are. Speak their language. Walk with them at their pace.

We all woke up at different times. We all had different triggers. We all struggled with different aspects of the truth. Remember your own journey before judging someone else's.

A Word to the Seeker

If you've read this far and you're not sure what you believe, but something stirred - that's the signal. That's the beginning. That's the receiver starting to function.

Don't rush it. Don't force conclusions. Don't adopt new beliefs just because the old ones failed. Let the process unfold. Ask questions. Test everything. Hold loosely to what you think you know, and tightly to the pursuit of what is true.

The Creator is patient. The truth isn't going anywhere. And the veil lifts at its own pace, according to what you can handle and what you're ready to see.

Take your time. This isn't a race. It's a relationship. And relationships develop through presence, not performance.

The Prayer of the Awakening

Father Yahuah, Creator of all that is seen and unseen:

Open the eyes of those who read these words. Remove the scales that blur their vision. Restore the receivers that have been calcified and jammed. Clear the channels that have been filled with noise.

Let Your signal reach those who are ready to hear. Let Your truth illuminate the patterns You have hidden. Let Your Spirit guide the ones who are remembering. Let Your Name be known, spoken, and honored.

We do not ask for easy paths. We ask for clear sight. We do not ask for comfortable truth. We ask for actual truth. We do not ask to be proven right. We ask to know You.

Protect those who are waking up from the attacks that will come. Strengthen those who are already awake for the work that remains. Unite those who carry Your signal that we may amplify it together.

In the name of Yahusha HaMashiach, who came in Your name, who died in Your will, who rose in Your power, and who returns in Your glory.

HalleluYah. So let it be.

May Yahuah bless you and keep you. May He make His face shine upon you and be gracious to you. May He lift up His countenance upon you and give you peace.

In the name of Yahusha HaMashiach, the true and living One, the Lamb who was slain, the Lion who returns.

HalleluYah.

Through the Veil: A Testimony of the Great Substitution The Complete Expanded Edition Word Count: Approximately 25,000 words